

NOT MAN FROM MARS—Imagine having this charge into you on a football field. It's Frankie Sinkwich, Georgia star with the broken jaw, equipped for action against Ole Miss tomorrow night. The steel "bumpers," covered with rubber, are expected to protect the injured jaw from harm. The special helmet is split up the back, so that he can get into it easier. After he is in the "cage," the helmet is laced up. You can see the lacing in the side view (left) and get an idea (right) what he will look like to opposing linemen.

City's Biggest Football Crowd Foreseen for This Weekend

Tech-Notre Dame, Georgia-Mississippi Games To Attract Thousands; Virtually Every Hotel Room in Town Has Been Reserved.

By FRANK DRAKE.

The hinges of the Gate City of the South will bulge near to bursting this weekend when probably the largest football crowd ever to pack and jam Atlanta flows in to attend two bound-to-be exciting games—the gridiron classics between Georgia Tech and Notre Dame and the University of Georgia and Mississippi.

Thousands of people already have reserved virtually every hotel room in the city, and what with a few conventions and conferences going on tomorrow and Saturday also, hotel officials yesterday declared they were oversold and overworked.

Leading hostilities were reserved from the basement to the roof weeks ago and tourist camps and tourist homes were reported doing a land office business already—days before the two big games.

Two Ace-High Games.

Attracted by the opportunity of seeing two ace-high matches—the Georgia-Mississippi tilt at Athens tomorrow night under Sanford field's floodlights and the fight between Tech and Notre Dame Saturday afternoon at Grant field, not only Georgians by the hordes, but football-mad people from New York, Washington, Chicago, the south, the east and the north, the west and several other directions, have made plans to visit Atlanta. It's the first big football weekend of the season, and the pretty weather, warm, clear and very autumnal, is causing an unprecedented demand for hotel rooms and football tickets.

Sanford field is a near sellout for the battle between Coach Wally Butts' Bulldogs and Harry Mehre's Mississippi Rebels, and since Tuesday you couldn't buy a ticket for the Yellow Jacket-Fighting Irish game at Grant field—not even in the temporary seats. Oglethorpe's Petrels are playing the

Generals Sleep With Pants On In Blitz War, Reporter Finds

Carolina Maneuvers Prove Tough on Nerves, What With Blackout Conditions and Fear of Mechanized Units and Parachutists.

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of stories about Georgia soldiers now engaged in the extensive maneuvers of the First Army in North and South Carolina.)

By HAROLD MARTIN.

THIRTIETH DIVISION HEADQUARTERS, SOMEWHERE IN SOUTH CAROLINA, Oct. 8.—Major General Henry D. Russell, commander of the 30th Division, sleeps with his pants on.

We are permitted to make this statement without fear of giving valuable information to the enemy, because the odds are 100 to 1 that Major General John P. Marley, commander of the other side, also lies down to rest minus only shoes and shirt.

All of which gives you a fair idea of what a war of nerves maneuvers such as these in progress over Carolina's rolling hills have become since the coming of the parachute trooper, the tank and the armored car.

Nobody, not even the general, can lie down to pleasant snoozing without a troubling fear that some large, hairy, perspiring character, wearing the armband of the other side, will come charging rudely into his boudoir in the dead of night.

The headquarters of an army, which once had some permanence about it, now has no more certainty of tenure than a push-cart peddler with a last year's license. Everything has to be ready to move as quick as a rabbit roused

Mask To Make Sinkwich Look Like 'Martian'

Broken Jaw, Liquid Diet Fail To Dampen Back's Ardor.

By AL SHARP.

Usually, Frankie Sinkwich just breezes along as Superman of the Georgia football team.

Tomorrow night, however, Frankie is going to play a new role—the Man from Mars.

If that sounds off-kilter, you should take a look at Frankie in his jaw-protecting make-up. It may not scare the University of Mississippi football players, but it certainly is going to make them look twice.

Sinkwich, you know, received a broken jaw when he was starring against South Carolina last Saturday night. Now he is equipped with an especially made headgear with bumpers.

The contraption of steel braces covered with rubber looks as if it would stop anything short of a tank.

It is supposed to keep the ground, shoes, elbows, etc., off of the sore spot. Because Sinkwich just naturally ain't aiming to stay out of that man's football game.

Other precautions include the wiring together of Frankie's teeth, so he can't move the broken jaw and so no one else can, either.

Besides that, there will be tape aplenty. In fact, Frankie's jaw should be his strongest point, what with reinforcements of steel, leather and tape.

All in all, it looks as if the only inconveniences attached will be the extra effort to breathe between gritting teeth and the tough job of traveling on "an empty stomach." He gets only liquids and it takes steaks for gridders.

Old-timers recall that Red Baron played the week after he received a broken jaw. And the Georgia Tech star did not have a Man-From-Mars mask. He simply had his teeth wired together. Coach Wallace Butts expects Frankie's efficiency to be cut. But how much nobody knows. His main trouble is getting "cotton" in his mouth and the difficulty he has in breathing.

Frankie has gained five pounds on his liquid diet since last Saturday, when he ran wild against South Carolina. This increase can be traced to 12 hours' sleep per day and no workouts until last night.

In the first two games, Frankie gained 260 yards running and 103 yards passing. He has scored three touchdowns and passed for four more.

Child Welfare Group Provides Needy Tots a Chance in Life

By EUGENIA BRIDGES HARTY.

Johnny was a sickly little lad. He was the "weakest" in a family of 16 children—that is, he was the "weakest" of the seven who survived.

At 16 months, he had experienced about all there is for a child to experience in the sickness line. And his 11 pounds showed malnutrition.

He was in and out of Grady hospital most of last spring—pneumonia four times, coupled once with measles. His is a hard-luck story from birth. He didn't get the proper care at home.

As a matter of fact, he probably wouldn't be here to tell the tale if it hadn't been for a coincidence

Terrible Battle J. A. Skelton, Marks Assault Gray Veteran, On Red Capital Is Dead at 95

Russians Admit Peril, Plead for Quick Invasion by Britain.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The grand-scale German offensive at the Russian center still was unaltered last night. Slowly and ponderously it moved forward, within 125 miles or less west of Moscow on one front and less than 220 miles south of the capital on the other, over fields of destiny shaken with the terrible clamor of the greatest mechanized battle the world has ever known.

The Russians, flinging themselves desperately at apparently superior forces, which Hitler's command was still strengthening constantly with imperative calls to the rear, were fighting a great delaying action, which clearly was bleeding the invaders heavily.

Armies Reported Trapped.

More than 500 Nazi tanks, Moscow reported yesterday, already had been destroyed or blown up by the torches of Red infantrymen charging into the very snouts of Hitler's steel machines.

But still the great Nazi are pressed on.

The Germans, their most imminent threatening wing standing somewhere about Vyazma to the west, claimed that a major breakthrough had been achieved there to form a solid German front, which not only had trapped several Red armies, but had "thoroughly shaken" Moscow's outer defenses.

The second and subsidiary German thrust had driven the Russians out of the important town of Orel, 88 miles to the east of that offensive's original base about Bryansk, thus reaching the main railway from Moscow to Kharkov in the Donets river basin of the Ukraine.

Evacuation of Orel was admitted by the Soviet command in its communique late last night.

British Invasion Urged.

The Germans, indeed, contended that major disaster for the Russians had spread to this southern theater and gateway to the Caucasus as well as along the center, asserting that southern Nazi-Hungarian-Italian-Slovak forces had struck southward to the sea of Azov from Dnieperopetrovsk to the port of Odessa to make a junction with German and Rumanian columns which had advanced along the Azov's upper shores to the east.

The magazine Bolshevik uttered what was very close to an urgent appeal for quick British action against the occupied continent to relieve Hitler's enormous pressure in the east, saying that the British empire now "ad the chance to deal 'destructive blows to the common foe of mankind.'"

The official organ of the Soviet Navy estimated that Hitler now had only 25 to 30 weak divisions in France and little artillery and few planes.

Summer Temperatures Are Forecast Today

Fair skies and summery temperatures will continue today, the weatherman forecast yesterday.

A slight drop from yesterday's 87-degree maximum is predicted with temperature extremes ranging from 82 to 89. Yesterday's extremes were 88 and 88.

Was Last Survivor of Andrews Raid at Big Shanty.

Colonel J. A. Skelton, 95, the last survivor of the famous Andrews raid at Big Shanty during the War Between the States, died yesterday at the Confederate Soldiers' Home on Confederate avenue, following a week's illness.

He enlisted in the Southern Army at the age of 16, when there was a desperate call for men, and served 13 months, mostly as a prison guard at Andersonville.

A native of Cobb county, he was born in 1846 on a farm bought by his family from the Indians, and owned to this day by his children.

Colonel Skelton was a passenger on board the "General," train captured by Union soldiers at Big Shanty, now Kennesaw, and later recaptured after a daring chase by Confederates.

Colonel Skelton spent three years in the service of the government as a railroad section hand after the war, but was dismissed by Republican Governor Block, who purged all Democrats from the pay rolls.

He came to the Soldiers' Home in October, 1938.

Surviving are four sons, Ed and George Skelton, of Smyrna; John Skelton, of Kennesaw, and Elijah Skelton, of Marietta; and a daughter, Mrs. Sid Arrington, of Smyrna. Funeral services will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon from the Methodist church at Kennesaw and burial will be in the cemetery.

An honorary escort from the State Patrol and the Soldiers' Home will attend.

IRONY—Lieutenant G. W. Wilson, of the State Highway Patrol, points to a part of the wreckage of the bomber which crashed last night near Riverdale, resulting in the death of the pilot. Note the words: "parachute exit."

Crash Scene Reunion Tragic

It was a tragic reunion with an old classmate last night for Lieutenant J. Segner, officer of the day at the Army Air Corps detachment at Candler airport.

Lieutenant Segner, in charge of the Army men at the crash scene, did not remember the name of Lieutenant K. E. Elliott, pilot of the ill-fated ship.

But when searchers found the body, and pulled a cover from the pilot's face, Lieutenant Segner said: "My God! I was in school with him at Randolph field!"

Witnesses Tell Of Seeing Ship Fall From Sky

Craft Belonged to Air Corps Ferry Command.

Lieutenant K. E. Elliott, pilot of a twin-motored bomber of the air corps ferry command, was killed last night when the ship crashed and burned in a cornfield about a mile north of Riverdale, Ga., approximately 16 miles south of Atlanta.

The body of Lieutenant Elliott was found about three-quarters of a mile from the scattered wreckage of the plane. His parachute was open, indicating he had apparently leaped from the ship too late to save himself.

The crash occurred at 7:15 o'clock. Lieutenant Elliott's ship was one of three bombers en route from Barksdale Field, La., to the Army Air Corps detachment field at Candler airport, according to Lieutenant J. W. Luker, who said he was flight leader of the three ships.

Destination Undisclosed.

Barksdale Field, however, reported last night there were no flights to Atlanta yesterday.

To questions concerning destination of the bombers, Lieutenant Luker and Lieutenant J. Segner, officer of the day at the Army Air Corps Detachment at Candler airport, declined comment, saying: "We can't divulge that information."

The Air Corps ferry command, part of the Army Air Corps, often flies ships made in this country on the first lap of their trip to Great Britain. The command takes them

British, Dutch and U. S. Stop All Oil for Japan

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(AP)—The United States, Great Britain and the refugee government of the Netherlands, it was learned authoritatively today, have agreed to stop all oil shipments to Japan.

Whatever oil Japan may be getting, responsible officials said, is coming from places other than the territories controlled by the three governments.

The agreement was made shortly after the three governments on July 26 froze all Japanese assets in their territories.

Before that, the United States, the Dutch East Indies and various British possessions were the principal sources for oil for Japan.

The only oil that has left the United States for Japan since July 26 was about $25,000 worth allotted to the Japanese passenger liner Tatuta Maru, to enable her to return to Japan. The Tatuta Maru was permitted to come into port after the freezing order so that it could disembark its American passengers, and cargo, including silk.

While trade between the United States and Japan has been theoretically possible since July 26, officials said there had been virtually none since the United States Treasury must give permission for the Japanese either to bring in or take out any property or money.

Storm Passes Atlantain Night On Way to Sea

Highest Wind Velocity Here Was 16 Miles Per Hour.

Its fury spent in south Georgia, a tropical storm passed Atlanta in the night and moved out to sea from the South Carolina coast, leaving fair skies and unseasonably warm weather in its wake, Meteorologist G. W. Mindling said last night.

Although observers kept a vigil at the downtown weather bureau until nearly midnight and all night long at the Candler Field Bureau, the storm went by Atlanta without any appreciable change in the partly cloudy to fair skies and the warm temperature. The highest wind velocity recorded here was 16 miles in the middle of the afternoon yesterday.

Reports on the storm were that it passed the northern part of South Carolina early in the morning and Weatherman Mindling said indications were that the center was well offshore by mid-afternoon.

mama. No small bundle of excess baggage ever behaved more beautifully in a crisis. Instead of toddling around the hospital, jabbering and getting into everything as most boys would at his age, he lay quietly in a tiny infant's crib. They didn't suspect till later that his twisted little body accounted for a year and four months of chronic undernourishment.

But that was last spring. Today, six months later, Johnny weighs 26 pounds. He is crawling around, getting into things. He's jabbering and trying to stand up on his short little legs. And he's mighty happy about it all. His foster parents brag a bit, perhaps, but they know what they're talking about. For they have a small son of their own. And they know about boys.

Johnny's mother can smile again, too. She's getting well and comes around to see him ever so often. His pop is being treated in a sanitarium.

Magic like this is practiced here every day. The fairy god-mother to Atlanta's unfortunate is the Child Welfare Association. Functioning in Fulton and DeKalb counties, it places children like Johnny in sound homes every day. It provides them with medical attention first, then, as their bodies heal, their emotional and intellectual development is tackled.

Are their parents able to take care of them properly? If not, they become paying guests in some thoroughly investigated environment. Usually at the end of a six months' period, they are returned to their homes for a probation period. If the necessary adjustments have been accomplished, they remain there. Otherwise they are again given a helping hand.

Not just tots like Johnny. The Child Welfare takes care of its small charges of all ages. It places them before they are born and it sends them to boarding school. And so sensitive is this organization to the so-called small hurts of childhood that can later cause serious emotional problems, that a skilled psychologist is on its staff of four physicians. Also it sways around with the Family Welfare Society, another charitable institution, in order to avail itself of the services of an excellent psychiatrist.

The Child Welfare Association is supported by the Community Chest. Its problems are Atlanta's problems. You can help.

Knox Predicts Georgia Shares Thrust at Isles In Parity Sum And Near East Paid to Farmers

Says U. S. Is on Nazi List of 'Unfinished Business.'

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Calling for renewed efforts to curb accidents among defense workers, Navy Secretary Knox asserted tonight that an invasion of the Near East and the British Isles was "a certainty the moment the Nazi iron octopus can ready itself for the assault" and that the United States was on the German list of "unfinished business."

He stated, in an address prepared for delivery over the NBC Blue Network and before the National Safety Congress, that industrial mishaps in normal times caused no irreparable damage to the nation's security, but added: "But not now. Not today, with Hitler's robot fanatics blasting at the gates of Leningrad and Odessa, with his Stuka bombers eager to return to winter night attacks on British industrial centers, with the actual invasion of the Near East and the British Isles not a possibility but a certainty the moment the Nazi iron octopus can ready itself for the assault, and with the United States the final and most important item on the Nazi agenda of unfinished business."

Knox also declared that he did not countenance defense strikes and said "any attempt, either by labor or capital, to gain unreasonable profit at the expense of the nation's security has my bitterest condemnation."

He said labor and management showed an increasing willingness to make concessions to avoid interrupting production.

Board Refuses To Take Over Barron School

Inability To Agree With Walton Group Given as Reason.

By LUKE GREENE.

Quickly and methodically, the State Board of Education yesterday junked the plan to take over and operate David I. (Red) Barron's school at Monroe and publicly announced their reason was failure to reach an agreement with the Walton County Board of Education.

A special committee submitted a report in which it recommended rejection of the Georgia Vocational and Trades school because the Walton County Board did not wish to transfer the property in fee simple to the state board. This report was adopted with little discussion.

The committee made no mention of the ruling by Attorney General Ellis Arnall and two Talmadge-appointed assistants that the state could not assume the institution's debts.

Just as the board had finished rejecting the Barron deal, Thrasher walked into the meeting and handed his audit to the Governor. The Governor shook his head and told Thrasher the audit wasn't needed because the whole thing had been settled.

On second thought, however, the chief executive decided to read Thrasher's report, which showed that the indebtedness totaled $36,555.33. Thrasher also reported that the total increase in equity in buildings and equipment during the period Barron had the school under lease was $24,937.80.

60 Congressmen Hold Strategy Meeting to Fight Ship Arming

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Opponents of the administration's foreign policy laid plans tonight to oppose the arming of American merchantmen, a step which President Roosevelt is expected to propose in a message to congress tomorrow.

"The main decision was to oppose in every way amendments to the neutrality act as being, in fact, an authorization to carry on war," announced Senator Taft, Republican, Ohio, following a conference of senators and representatives.

He said that approximately 60 members of congress, both Democrats and Republicans, attended the meeting. It followed a report of legislative leaders that Mr. Roosevelt would present his request tomorrow.

Want More Time.

He said that the conferees were "very determined" that the House Committee on Foreign Affairs hold hearings on the whole subject of arming cargo ships and that all felt at least a week should be set aside to hear representatives of the Army, Navy and others.

"In the World War arming of merchantmen was considered to be a complete failure," Taft asserted.

The Ohioan said the administration opponents were "generally pleased" at reports that the forthcoming legislation would provide only that cargo ships be allowed to arm. He declared "it apparently shows that he (the President) hasn't got enough votes in the house to repeal the neutrality act."

Other Changes.

The President hopes, it was reported, that later congress will also rescind provisions of the same law which forbid American ships to enter ports of belligerent nations.

A decision to confine the legislation to the armed ship issue was reached today at a White House conference attended by leading members of both parties from both branches of congress and also by Harry L. Hopkins, co-ordinator of the lend-lease program.

Hopkins and several others were reported to be deeply disappointed at the decision not to include repeal of the ship movement restrictions in the legislation. Some officials expressed a hope, however, that somewhere along the bill's parliamentary course—probably in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee—such a repealer would be added to the measure.

Strategy Adopted.

So much stress was laid upon this point, that conjecture was aroused as to whether the grand strategy adopted was not this: To avoid too much opposition in congress by asking for only a part of what is actually wanted and insert the remainder when a favorable opportunity arises.

It was decided that the house should take up the measure first, with hearings to begin on Monday before its Foreign Affairs Committee.

Some thought it probable that the house would vote its approval by the end of the week, passing a bill confined to the armed ship proposal.

F. D. R.'s Day

By LEE CARSON.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(INS). The Old Gang: Back again earnest as life and twice as big, came the congressional leaders with four additions. Vice President Wallace and Secretary Hull arrived first slipped into the White House study for a few preliminary minutes with the big boss. A few minutes later the minority and majority leaders, who spent two hours yesterday talking over the neutrality act revision with the President, filed in bulkier by three representatives and Speaker Sam Rayburn. Cutting their running time down to one and one-half hours, the President and the capitol hillbillies adjourned. The President decided to get the ball rolling immediately, said he would send a message to congress tomorrow.

Clock-Work: Thanks to some careful timing and clock-work, the President was able to run off a string of five callers before lunch time. First of the 15-minute appointments brought handsome Ed Stettinius in for a routine bow lend-lease co-ordinator; new Costa Rican Minister Arthur Lane Bliss passed Stettinius on the way into the presidential office. General T. Hines, veterans' administrator, marched in next to talk over some hospital woes with Commander-in-Chief Roosevelt; exited as WPA Administrator Howard Hunter entered. The President okayed a slight pay raise for 1,030,000 WPA's because of upped living costs. United States Housing Authority Nathan Strauss came in to see Mr. Roosevelt just because he wanted to see him—nothing on his mind especially and no complaints to register.

Presidential Staff: Presidents are obviously made of incredibly durable goods—after a hectic, grinding morning and decisions to be made on the spot, people to be seen, phoned, comforted, repudiated ad infinitum and a lunch more Pope Plus than sandwiches, the President bit into a choking hulk of work as soon as Taylor departed. He decided, wrote and released a little answer to the DNB story from Berlin on the contents of the letter Harriman handed to Stalin and pointed out that this was an example of the neat Nazi spy espionage and propaganda. This shifted from his desk to the world. Mr. Roosevelt got to work on his message to Congress. Interrupted repeatedly by phone calls, other duties, he continued to get his views on the neutrality act revision into working order, was still at it when Mrs. Roosevelt came home from her office at OGD. After dinner and talking with Harry Hopkins he returned to the message at hand and worked through the warm, unquiet evening.

HER PART FOR DEFENSE—Lending a pretty touch to the grim truth that fire is a menace to the defense program, comely Frances Mills is shown with an appropriate poster doing her part to emphasize that Fire Prevention Week has a special meaning to the program of national preparation. The week extends through Saturday.

to points where they are turned over to British pilots, or pilots employed by Britain, who ferry them across the Atlantic. The flights usually begin in California.

Lieutenant Luker said he was leading the three ships and that he did not see Lieutenant Elliott's plane fall. He added that he could give no reason why the plane crashed, stating that his plane had plenty of gasoline and that he assumed Lieutenant Elliott's plane had sufficient gasoline also.

Crash of the plane was first reported by Mrs. Roy Huey, Mrs. J. N. Deaton and T. J. Donnelly, all living in the vicinity and all of whom said the ship was about a mile up before it crashed, exploded and burned. They added the ship landed on its nose and that wreckage was scattered over a 75 to 100-yard area.

News of the crash sent Captain J. J. Elliott, of the State Highway Patrol, and several of his men to the scene, as well as between 200 and 300 spectators, whose automobiles choked roads leading into Riverdale. Fulton county, Hapeville, and Jonesboro police also rushed to the scene.

Searcher Finds Body.

Lieutenant Luker and the pilot of the second ship, who had landed safely at Candler airport, and Lieutenant Segner also went to the scene, accompanied by a detachment of enlisted men.

There was no confirmation of the report that Lieutenant Elliott had been in radio communication with the airport a few minutes before his ship fell.

It was at first believed that Lieutenant Elliott had bailed out safely, and searching parties went to seek him. His body was found by one of these volunteer searchers, Isaac Williams, of Route 4, College Park.

It was learned the three ships started their flight originally from Long Beach, Cal., according to papers found in the pockets of Lieutenant Elliott's flying togs. His home station was said to be McCord Field, Washington.

A guard was placed about the wreckage. An investigation will be launched today, it was said.

The area where the crash occurred is rather heavily wooded and in the general vicinity where an Eastern Air liner crashed last February, resulting in the loss of eight lives.

Lieutenant Luker said the wrecked bomber was number AL-73.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backaches quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatism, pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 million of kidney trouble sufferers out of their waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

White House Accuses Nazis of Distorting F.D.R. Note to Stalin

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(AP)—The White House today accused the Nazis of distorting for propaganda purposes a letter in which President Roosevelt assured Premier Joseph Stalin of supplies to fight Hitler.

Britain Viewed As Gaining in Atlantic Battle

American Aid Helps Build Reserves of Bulky Commodities.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Indications multiplied today that Britain is winning the upper hand in the vital "Battle of the Atlantic" while Adolf Hitler concentrates on the war in Russia.

Secrecy shrouds whatever naval measures have been taken against the German submarines and air-planes at the Atlantic supply routes between the United States and the British Isles but the result is apparent from recent developments.

In fact, Lord Woolton, British minister of food, told the house of lords in London today in so many words that "We have been getting the better of the enemy in the Atlantic—a task in which we are now receiving most valuable American aid." This was demonstrated, he said, by the fact that the British now hold reserves of bulky commodities such as wheat and sugar which make the heaviest demands on shipping.

Likewise, Harry L. Hopkins, lend-lease co-ordinator, was reported to have told the conference of congressional leaders at the White House considering revision of the neutrality act that on the whole supplies from this country now were reaching Britain safely. And hearings on the new lend-lease appropriation made public today disclosed that Chairman Emory S. Land, of the Maritime Commission, had testified that Germany would fail to block delivery of lend-lease supplies unless sinkings were increased to a point "greater than they have ever been before in the history of the world."

Although Land said that 25 per

The personal message, which was delivered to the Soviet leader about 10 days ago, expressed "great confidence" in a Soviet victory and promised that supplies would be found to "fight Hitler on all fronts, including your own." In releasing the text belatedly today, the White House invited a comparison of it with that of a purported text of the same document published today by the German news agency, DNB.

"When such a comparison is made," a White House statement said, "the propaganda objectives of the Nazi action become very clear."

Principal Differences. Two principal differences were noted between the salutations and conclusions of the two texts. While the White House text read "My Dear Mr. Stalin" and ended "Yours very sincerely" an unofficial translation of DNB's text began "My dear friend Stalin" and concluded with "Yours in friendship."

Differences in the body of the two texts were reported to have been mainly due to translation, with the sense remaining about the same. This led to a belief in some quarters that the Germans actually got hold of an English text in this country and transmitted it in code via South America, or obtained a Russian copy in Moscow.

Officials would not say whether an investigation was under way to ascertain how DNB obtained its information, but it was assumed this was being looked into.

Letter Not Dated. The President's letter, presented to Stalin about 10 days ago by Averill Harriman, head of the American aid mission to Moscow, was not dated. It was believed, however, to have been written about three weeks ago when Harriman and other members of the mission left for Moscow via London.

This was some time prior to the new Nazi drive aimed at Moscow. At the time the Russians were holding on nearly all fronts.

'Lease' Repayment Talks Under Way

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Members of the house were told today that "confidential agreements" have been made with four "small countries" for "payments of some character" for lease-lend aid extended them, but that no agreements have been concluded yet with Great Britain, the principal beneficiary.

Repeatedly during debate on the new $5,985,000,000 lease-lend appropriation, members inquired as to what guarantees had been received for repayment.

Representative Wigglesworth, Republican, Massachusetts, said that the decision on reimbursement by Great Britain was "still in the lap of the gods," but added that "confidential agreements" have been made with four small countries for payments of some character but this information cannot be divulged now.

"A master agreement with Great Britain is now in progress," Wigglesworth told house members. He then read from testimony of Dean Acheson, assistant secretary of state, before the House Appropriations Committee.

HOME DEFENSE UNIT. FITZGERALD, Ga., Oct. 8.—Fitzgerald's reorganized Home Defense unit will be equipped with uniforms and qualified to receive arms and other equipment from the state, it was voted here by city council. Special to THE CONSTITUTION. ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 8.—After giving 40 years of service as moderator of the Baptist Sarepta Association, Dr. John D. Mell, of Athens, has resigned that post. Dr. Mell tendered his resignation at the recent meeting of the association in Apple Valley, between Jefferson and Commerce, and was honored by being given the title of moderator emeritus for life.

Elected to succeed Dr. Mell, a past president of the Georgia Baptist convention, was the Rev. F. J. Hendrix, of Colbert. Other officers named were the Rev. W. R. Coile, of Winterville, vice moderator; G. P. Whitworth, of Hull, clerk, and A. P. Stevens, of Carlton, treasurer.

Taking part in the two-day program were Dr. James W. Merritt, secretary of the Georgia Baptist Mission Board, Atlanta, and Dr. O. P. Gilbert, editor of the Georgia Baptist Christian Index.

'Acres of Tanks' New Slogan

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's request for a $5,985,000,000 lend-lease fund was approved overwhelmingly by the House Appropriations Committee today and its backers started it through congress with a cry that "clouds of airplanes" and "acres of tanks" are needed to beat Hitler.

Within a few minutes after the committee approved a $6,159,416,229 omnibus bill carrying the aid fund, Chairman Cannon, Democrat, Missouri, took it to the house floor for three days of debate with this statement:

"Our allies abroad are fighting with their backs to the wall and cannot survive without our assistance. And if they succumb we must at some portion of our continent be faced by an aggressor who in two short years has destroyed every nation in Europe. . . .

"We must supply them with clouds of airplanes, acres of tanks and munitions to equal and surpass the vast streams of machinery flowing from aggressor countries." But Republicans promptly reported that since very little of the first $7,000,000,000 lend-lease appropriation of last March had been spent, the current fund was not needed immediately.

Representative Tabor, of New York, senior Republican committeeman, told the house that there was "place after place" where the President's recommendations could be cut and announced he would propose, among other things, a $300,000,000 cut in a $1,875,000,000 lump sum for agricultural, industrial and other commodities.

Then the debate turned to such questions as the propriety of permitting any of the fund to be used to help Russia and the speed with which the money could be translated into war materials.

Attempts will be made to exclude Russia specifically from the benefits of the money—although sponsors of the bill said that it was not contemplated that that nation would be helped. Representative Ditter, Republican, Pennsylvania, served notice that he would attempt to earmark 10 per cent of the total for small business organizations "now facing shut-downs for want of basic raw materials."

The big bill was divided into 10 categories, the agricultural and industrial figure being the largest. Other major items: Ordnance, stores and supplies, $1,190,000,000; aircraft, $885,000,000; tanks and armored equipment, $385,000,000; vessels, ships and boats, $850,000,000.

AS DEKALB PARADED—A parade of nearly 500 cars and floats yesterday launched the annual DeKalb Harvest Festival at Panthersville. ## Governor Hints Again He Will Seek Re-election

Tells Festival He Will 'Pay Schools Out of Debt by 1944.'

The Governor threw out another strong hint yesterday that he will seek re-election when he told a DeKalb Harvest Festival crowd he hopes to "pay the schools out of debt by 1944."

Grimacing slyly, and in excellent campaign form, he led a five-mile motcade to the festival grounds with a car full of pretty girls and DeKalb Sheriff Jake Hall. Introduced by Commissioner Scott Candler, the Governor said his administration had abated "free school teachers" and had cut expenses, adding "after all, that's my platform."

Congressman Robert Ramspeck, of Decatur, sat on the speakers' stand next to the Governor, but did not speak. A. M. Chandler opened the ceremony with introduction of festival officials, and Dr. Dick Hall gave the invocation.

Complete with a midway and exhibits of hundreds of agricultural products, mostly from DeKalb county, the festival will run through Saturday on the new grounds at Panthersville.

The horse show, in which 200 well-bred animals will be exhibited, starts tomorrow morning under sponsorship of the DeKalb Chamber of Agriculture and Commerce. A flower show, in which 30 DeKalb county garden clubs will participate, starts this morning.

Drewry Urges Press Freedom At Elberton

Journalism School Dean Is Speaker at Kiwanis Meeting.

ELBERTON, Ga., Oct. 8.—(AP)—This nation's free press is "the mainstay of democracy in a war-torn world," Dean John E. Drewry, of the Henry Grady Journalism school, asserted tonight.

Addressing the Kiwanis Club, he recalled that this organization's public relations committee chairman, Calvin M. Keller, said recently that "freedom of the press has long been taken for granted in America. Events taking place in other parts of the world warn us, however, to be on guard."

Drewry was invited to address the club in its observance of National Newspaper Week by Z. B. Rogers, two of whose sons are graduates of the Grady Journalism school, a unit of the University of Georgia. The sons are Lee Rogers, movie editor and acting city editor of The Atlanta Constitution, and Bill Rogers, with the advertising department of a Cincinnati firm.

"Back in 1937," said Drewry, "Dean Carl W. Ackerman, of the Columbia School of Journalism, featured in his annual report a map of the world which he called 'The Black Plague of the Twentieth Century.'"

"This map is a study in contrasts. Those countries in which the agencies of communication are controlled by the government are represented by black. Those in which the press and similar agencies are relatively free from official supervision are white."

"Black, as you know, is symbolic of darkness, gloom, retrogression, tragedy, fear, confusion. 'White, on the other hand, suggests light, progress, freedom, hope and all those things that give life significance and meaning."

"In the words of Junius of old, 'Let it be impressed upon your minds, let it be instilled into your children that the liberty of the press is the palladium of all civil, political and religious rights of free men.'"

State Capitol 'Furriners' Create Eating Crisis for City Workers

"Furriners" from the state capitol are precipitating something of an eating problem at the city hall.

Sweeping from the Governor's bailiwick, the influx begins about noon each week day except Saturday. And it comes just as the 400-odd city hall employees are ready to put on their midday feed bag.

The little soda and concession stand in the basement is taxed far beyond its capacity to meet the needs of the city workers alone, but it is an impossible task to meet the demands when scores of capitol poachers add to the problem. It's a matter of catch as catch can or wait until the rush is over and get the leftovers.

Every booth and table is taken during the rush hours, seats fronting the fountains are crowded and standing room sometimes is at a premium.

Several attempts have been made to enlarge the facilities so the gastronomical demands of employees can be met without staggering lunch hours, but nothing has come of the efforts.

One city employee proposed the following solution of the alien problem:

"They ought to eat where they scratch."

Gain in Value Shown by Milk Cows in State

Agency Says Prices Paid Farmers Are on Upgrade.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Georgia's investment in barnyard milk cows jumped $9 per bossy in one year, the Georgia Crop Reporting Service announced today. Cows which sold at $43 each on September 15 last year were worth $52 on the same date this season, the price report showed.

"With few exceptions, average price received by Georgia growers for farm commodities were definitely higher than a month earlier, sharply up from a year ago and in many cases had reached the highest point in several years," the report stated.

"Sharply up from prices received one year ago are cottonseed, up 139 per cent; cotton, up 86; hogs, up 66; eggs, up 37; beef cattle, up 36; peanuts, up 33; veal calves, up 28; butterfat, up 25; wheat and milk cows, up 21."

Turkey Crop Gain in State Is Reported

Number Set at 128,000 by Athens Reporting Service.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Georgia's turkey crop is estimated at 128,000 this year compared to 122,000 last year, so Georgians may—if they want to—feast on gobblers on both the November 20 Thanksgiving designated by President Roosevelt and the November 27 date Governor Talmadge will proclaim.

The 5 per cent increase in the state's crop was reported by the Georgia Crop Reporting Service, which made a survey of raisers about September 1. This year's production is the same as the 1933-37 average.

Due to increased popularity of the broad-breasted type, with plenty of white meat, the weight of turkeys continues to increase.

RECORD BREAKERS—Student Nurses Irene Land and Mary Weathers feed the little tots at Grady hospital nursery. Obstetricians attributed a sharp upturn in child births in the city to war fears. Increases were reported at many of the leading private hospitals. Crawford W. Long Memorial hospital set an all-time record for child births with a total of 170 babies born last month. Total of 571 babies were born here in September.

Atlanta's Birth Rate Is Rising; 170 New Babies In One Month

Atlanta's birth rate is growing by leaps and bounds—and the war is the cause of it all.

War fears have brought the addition of a new member to many an Atlanta family during the past 38 days, a survey of hospitals revealed yesterday. Approximately 700 babies have been delivered at Grady and at private hospitals since September 1.

An all-time record was established at Crawford W. Long Memorial hospital, where a total of 170 babies were born during September. This represents an increase of 79 child-births over a like period last year for this hospital. Thirty-six more babies were born at this institution since October 1.

Obstetricians throughout the city attribute the increase to the war alone. Miss Estelle Henderson, obstetrician at Crawford

Long, explained that the war had caused an increase in both marriages and births.

Crawford Long's record bettered Grady hospital's figure. A total of 136 babies were born there during September and 30 have been born since October 1.

For the first eight days of this month approximately 120 babies were born at hospitals in the city. During September of this year 571 babies were born in Atlanta, against a total of 388 for a like period last year.

Increases were reported at other private hospitals with Piedmont showing an increase of nine children born in September, 1941, against a comparative period for 1940. St. Joseph's had an increase of 10 babies for a like period. Georgia Baptist and Emory were about even for this year as compared with 1940.

Expect City's Biggest Crowd

Troy (Ala.) Teachers' College at Oglethorpe Saturday afternoon also.

The Atlanta Convention and Visitors' Bureau refused to estimate the crowd expected here—it is too big. There are half a dozen conventions and meetings scheduled and all the hotels are full up for the events, the bureau reported.

Tear Their Hair.

The managers, officials, room clerks and telephone girls at all the hotels were tearing their hair, flooded with requests for reservations they cannot fill.

"We are expecting one of the biggest football crowds in history," said D. O. Beusse, president of the Atlanta Hotel Men's Association. "Looks like the crowd will be just as big as that one for the Georgia-Georgia Tech game here in 1927. All the hotels are sold out for the weekend and have been for days."

"We been sold out for this weekend for a month," J. J. Page, of the Henry Grady moaned. "I've had to turn down more than 500 requests and is it costing me money wiring replies that I have no more rooms. It's the biggest weekend we ever had."

The Biltmore reported it has reserved every available room, and the Notre Dame and the Mississippi teams are stopping there, too. Also the Biltmore has conventions of the Alpha Kappa Psi professional fraternity, and the southern agencies of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company.

Famous Quarterback Club.

The famous Quarterback Club of St. Petersburg, Fla., whose members attend football games all over the country together, is coming in by special train, 150 strong, to stop at the Biltmore.

The Southeastern Electrical Exchange and 200 Chevrolet dealers are congregating at the Henry Grady Friday and Saturday, and the Ansley has a soil conservation meeting and a CCC conference running those days.

Cots and special single beds are being brought out of storage by many of the hotels, ready to be placed in rooms to accommodate as many people as possible.

"We are sleeping four or more persons in some of our rooms," declared one official.

Tales of having more requests than they could possibly handle were told by representatives of the Piedmont, the Wincoff, the Georgian Terrace, the Cox-Carlton, the Atlantic, the Robert Fulton, the Imperial, the Clermont, the Briarcliff, the Candler, and, in fact, virtually every hotel, both downtown and suburban.

They were all booked solid, S. R. O., for the two big days. And were they happy!

Unearthing ruins of a palace at Hamath, Syria, Danish archaeologists found many little baked clay rolls, believed to have served in fixing royal curls.

Priorities Plan Is Explained by Housing Aide

Intricacies of System Are Revealed Here by W. E. Nash.

The intricacies of priorities as applied to home construction were explained here last night by William E. Nash, defense housing coordinator representative in this district, at a dinner meeting in the Biltmore hotel under auspices of the housing committee of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

J. O. Sallee, chairman of the committee, presided, and introduced the speaker. Approximately 200 men, including contractors, building material dealers, mortgage loan representatives and others allied with the home construction industry, attended.

L. F. Kent, chairman of the priorities section of the chamber's housing committee, presided at a question and answer forum, during which Nash answered queries relative to priorities.

Those present included John B. Reeves, regional director of priorities for the OFM; R. E. Matheson, state director of the FHA. Kent's talk dealt mainly with the priorities system, which went into effect last September 22.

Additional information may be obtained from the FHA office in the 101 Marietta street building, it was said.

BUICK BUILDS FOR DEFENSE

Our assignment Building Pratt & Whitney valve-in-head aircraft engines for defense use.

A word about the calibre of the distinguished new automobiles that Buick now brings to market for 1942

Two thoughts stood solemn sentinel throughout all the planning of our 1942 cars.

The first was:—in their materials these cars must not trespass on the current needs of national defense.

The second was:—in their quality and performance they must not be an "ersatz" product.

If you think this leaves only a cramped and stifling byway for engineering to advance in, remember that difficulties are sometimes the spur that real ability needs.

Our new cars, it seems to us, superbly prove this. But we neither expect nor ask you to take our word for it.

Indeed, we hope instead that you're skeptical—that you will require these sleek and powerful Buicks to demonstrate their merit under your own hands.

The real way to know what they are, and how marvelously they perform, is to breeze them down a country road or tool them through clotted traffic.

The sure way to gauge their mettle and their inmost goodness is to plump them squarely into the stiffest task your imagination can supply.

There are great gifts undefeatedly at work in the industry of this nation and not the least of them is good old-fashioned American ingenuity.

We have of course no corner on that here at Buick. But the first mile you drive one of these magnificent automobiles will make you say that we certainly have our share.

So come try the gorgeous new cars that we not only say pace the pack for 1942 but are bold enough to believe set an all-time high in all-round automotive excellence.

They will make you glad—nay, proud—all over again that you're living in America—and now!

The Russian Front

Reports of a major German offensive in the direction of Moscow confirm previous impressions that siege operations would be resorted to at Leningrad and the main goal of the German drive would be toward the Caucasus.

While the attack toward Moscow is serious now, it will be so only if it succeeds in reaching its objective quickly. Otherwise it will necessarily be slowed down by the vicious winter storms, and its diversion value largely nullified.

The main attack continues to be in the south, where terrain and weather make winter operations more feasible, and where the economic gains to German arms, if successful, will be greater than in any other section of the Soviet Union.

There is a classic pattern to the Russian front now, even though the battle lines stretch thousands of miles. To the north, Leningrad holds as a bastion on the right flank. In the south, the Germans are attempting to turn the left flank and break through to the Caucasus and the most vital Russian line of supply. In the center there is developing a major attack to prevent diversion of troops and supplies to the assistance of the harder-pressed left flank of the Russian armies. What had essentially been three separate battlefronts now has become a single front on which the general contact of Red armies has been re-established.

What are the chances of the southern flank? Apparently they are good. The German armies cannot advance much farther along the northern shores of the Black sea until the Crimea has been captured. Thus far, there is every indication Russia has made extensive preparations to hold the Crimea and its vital naval base of Sevastopol, and that the Germans have not succeeded in parachute or glider or naval landings in this age-old cockpit of war.

The Donets and the basins are important industrial sections, the loss of which would be serious but not fatal. They have yet to be captured, although it is in range of heavy air attack, and they may be safe as long as the Crimea holds. Should these three areas fall, the path to the Caucasus is open. But there have been reports that Russia has held in reserve a large army specially equipped for operations in the mountain fastnesses, while to the south Great Britain is massing whatever forces are available to bolster the Russian troops.

The gravest problem counterposed by a German drive to the region of the Caucasus is the fact such an advance will cut northern Russian forces from the oil supplies now received from the rich wells, thus hampering operations next spring. It is obvious the Russian "scorched earth" policy has been ruthlessly applied thus far in the war, and this makes it almost certain the oil wells will not fall intact into German hands. Undoubtedly, preparations have been made not only to destroy the wells but to render useless the underground reservoirs. This is a process that takes several weeks and the use of technical experts whom Great Britain probably has on the scene.

The Russian position is very grave, and there remains a definite possibility of a complete collapse which will impose a terrible burden upon Great Britain and the United States. Whatever help is to be sent Russia must be sent immediately, which makes American bickering about religious freedom in the Soviet rather ridiculous. There won't be religious freedom anywhere in the world if the Nazis succeed. And there wasn't any appreciable amount of religious freedom in czarist Russia when the Orthodox Church stifled science and education. Religion, it is well to recall, is a comparative value.

People Lose $400,000

One of the most alarming statements made by a responsible government official in many months was that of John M. Carmody, federal works administrator, in connection with a Michigan housing project. He was testifying before the Senate Defense Investigating Committee.

Officials, he said, were reluctant to save the government $400,000 on the million-dollar project because officials feared possible "repercussions" among American Federation of Labor craft unions. No direct objection had been made by the AFL Building Trades Council, but Carmody attempted to explain, he knew the Detroit Building Trades "do not want to see this contract go this way."

So the bid of P. J. Currier, Detroit manufacturer of pre-fabricated housing, was thrown out, despite the fact it was low by about $400,000.

If the government must bow to a tacit threat of labor, then this constitutes a monopoly just as fearsome and just as vicious as ever conceived by the robber barons of industry. It means the AFL building trades—and this is no new discovery, but a very disquieting one—have in effect told the people of the United States that the advantages of mass-produced houses are not to be available under pain of union displeasure. Discoveries of science and industry go for naught, and the people must continue buying at high prices the soon-to-be-old-fashioned site-built home.

The inexcusable trepidation of Carmody is better understood when unit prices are examined. Currier's bid estimated the cost of an "assembly line" five-room house at $3,265, a $1,326 saving per house under the next lowest bid. Currier predicted, too, that in the near future a 24x30-foot house of five rooms, full basement and "every modern convenience" could be built for $2,500 by pre-fabricating methods, while this would not be possible if labor insisted on "tripling" construction time by doing each part of the job on the site of the house.

The public, which must foot the bill, will now view Carmody's attitude, putting the government in the position of bowing to an impossible condition of labor, with quite the same equanimity displayed by the supposedly responsible works administrator. In a time in which every cent is needed for vital tasks, he has undertaken to throw away $400,000 because he thought building trades in one city might object.

One hears little at this juncture of the big city smoke nuisance, as any right-minded patriot won't mind getting some of the defense effort in his eye.

Day for Remembrance

Tomorrow, October 10, is the annual Forget-Me-Not Day. On that day sales of the little flowers, on the streets of the city, will raise funds to be used for the benefit of disabled American veterans of the first World War and their families.

This money is used to supplement the pensions paid these men by the government. It is not generally realized that, in more than half of these cases, the pension paid is less than $40 per month.

The money is used to purchase insulin and other needed medicines for indigent veterans, medicines the government does not provide. It is also used, insofar as it will go, to purchase food and clothing for worthy needy veterans and their dependents. There are no expenses involved in the distribution of these funds, all the necessary work is given freely by officers of the various chapters of the veterans' organization and their auxiliaries.

There is no way in which the general public can better demonstrate to the men who have paid, through physical incapacity or handicap, the price of the last war, the fact that America does not forget than by generous giving through this annual "Forget-Me-Not Day." Your gifts will go, anonymously, into the general fund, but you will have the satisfactory knowledge that you have, once again, remembered men who as long as life shall last must never be forgotten.

Though he denies being a Communist, Harry Bridges is found by an examiner to have held consistently to the party line. Maybe the man is the victim of a couple of hundred coincidences.

Georgia Editors Say:

RED TAPE CAN CHOKE A GOOD FARM CROP!

(From Cobb County Times.)

A citizen who owns a farm out yonder a ways in Cobb county, who has a good tenant on it and complies with the rulings of AAA, and the wishes of the county agent and the soil conservation department and practically any government agency which come along, complains rather bitterly about red tape in said agencies. "I know they are doing a fine job, and that they must go by rules," but sometimes the rules in one agency conflict with rules in another. And then a good program gets a bad name and a lot of good work is undone."

His complaint is not against any agency nor its objectives, but solely against the red tape that makes it difficult for a farmer, with full wish to co-operate, to understand what he is to do.

Perhaps such mixups are inevitable. On the other hand, it is possible that if all the various agencies working with and for the farmer would get together every so often for a round-table discussion of their problems, some of the confusion could be ironed out. It might be to the benefit of everyone concerned to try such red-tape eliminating conferences.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

ISOLATIONIST TACTICS WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Congressional isolationists, who seem willing to go to any extremes to keep the country out of the European conflict, are now proposing that a war declaration be substituted for any recommendation made by the President for revision or repeal of the neutrality act.

Senator Taft, of Ohio, was the first of the group to indirectly suggest such a course. Some days ago he sought to raise the issue by charging that neutrality repeal would be equivalent to a formal declaration of war.

Since then others have taken it up. Now one of the most rabid of the bloc—Representative Hamilton Fish, Republican, of New York—has gone so far as to say he would offer a war resolution himself as a means of bringing the matter before the house. Still another, Senator Bennett Clark, Democrat, of Missouri, charged in an American First speech at Pittsburgh Monday night that the administration would not deal with the situation honestly if the President failed to send in a message asking for a declaration of war.

MEANINGLESS GESTURE The whole purpose back of the isolationist move, of course, is to beloud the issue, realizing that there is little sentiment in congress at the moment for going headlong into the war. Defeat of a resolution, whether it be offered separately or as a substitute for neutrality revision or repeal, would be hailed as a show of some sort to the administration's foreign policy, although obviously the gesture would be meaningless without White House sponsorship. But that is the way the noninterventionists work. To revise the neutrality law to permit the arming of American ships and their use in belligerent ports would, they say, be a definite step toward war. They made the same charge about the lease-lend legislation and the occupation of United States Marines of Iceland, which we took over to prevent Hitler from getting there first. The shooting war predicted in their direful warnings hasn't materialized yet.

There is no reason to assume that they are any more correct in their appraisal of proposed neutrality repeal.

HITLER DECIDES In the light of the latest isolationist stand, it cannot be emphasized too strongly that the main reason why we are not at war with Hitler already is because he does not want us at war. It is to his advantage to keep us out of the conflict until his hands are free in Europe, just as it was to keep at peace with Russia until he had disposed of France and had brought the Balkan states under his control. But the fact that he has a trite isolationist nonaggression pact with Russia was not sufficient to prevent him from invading the country when he found himself in position to move in that direction. He did not want Russia at war while he was engaged with France any more than he wants the United States actively on the side of the British now. He attacked Russia only when his movements were otherwise unhampered on the continent, just as our government heads are convinced he will attack us if the opportunity ever arises, once the Red army is overwhelmed and the British are subdued.

OUR SHIPS NOT SUNK The fact that the Nazi dictator has made hardly more than a word challenge of the President's recently declared new policy for clearing American patrol waters of Axis warcraft is not without some significance in view of Hitler's intention to avoid drawing us into the war yet. All of the sinkings of our vessels which were threatened by the Nazis after the President's "shoot-on-sight" order have not taken place. It never made sense that they would.

In raising such a fuss over proposed neutrality repeal, the isolationists seem to ignore both the foregoing attitude with respect to Hitler's indicated war intentions and the declared policy of the administration for the defeat of Nazism. They disregard the fact that congress, in their opposition, has passed measures supporting the administration's policy of all-out aid to the British, and that the country apparently is wholeheartedly behind this program.

HITLER KNOWS ENEMY The net effect of our British aid effort is to commit us definitely to Hitler's defeat. Why else would we be giving them—not selling them—some thirteen billion dollars' worth of supplies and equipment? Can any isolationist believe that Hitler regards us as anything but an enemy, under the circumstances? Or that he would treat us as anything less than a belligerent if his hands were free?

Repeal of the neutrality act, then, would only seem to be the next logical step in the British aid policy laid down by congress itself in passing the lease-lend bill. Administration leaders haven't the slightest doubt of the benefits that would go to the British with repeal or revision. It would not only give protection to American vessels by permitting them to be armed, but would open the way for their use in the shipment of vital materials to British ports.

Three-Cents Worth Of Comedy.

The mail, yesterday, brought a laugh. It was in the form of a letter, written on a letterhead of the "American Hotel," at Carlinville, Ill. Of course, that is no proof it came from that place. Anyone can get a hotel letterhead and use it where and when he pleases. Postmark on the envelope was Indianapolis. And the sender had been very, very careful to make unreadable the return address on the upper left-hand corner. It is typewritten and the writer knows his spelling nor grammar, capitalization nor punctuation. It has a typewritten signature, "James O'Rourke," which is probably not the correct name of the sender.

The envelope is addressed to "Editor, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga."

The whole thing is so amusing it seems unfair not to share it with all of you. So, here is the letter for your delectation. (If any of the language is offensive, it is because I failed to catch the meaning of such a word as "blazy." It has been edited where necessary to make it fit for home reading. SHOWS WHAT BIGOTS THERE ARE STILL IN THE ROTTON SOUTHERN WERE IT NOT FOR THE "NORTHERN BRAINS" AND "CAPITAL," the south would still be AS IT WAS 100 YEARS AGO—NOT ANY ONE THERE has any initiative, all are afflicted with the "HOOK-WORM." Another thing you are still fighting the war. Which shows your bigotry and UNAMERICANISM. REALLY IT WOULD HAVE BEEN A FINE THING TO HAVE DEPORTED ALL SLAVES AND SLAVE OWNERS AFTER THE WAR—where they could have had their fill of their OWN FOLLY AND DAMN FOOLS FOOLISHNESS to their fill. YOUR FOOL GEO. SENATOR—MUST THINK A LOT OF HIMSELF WHEN Roosevelt tried to "KILL" him politically. YET HE plays all the way thru for Roosevelt. WHAT A FOOL. YET what can a DECENT MAN EXPECT FROM THE CHEAP "REBELS" from the dirty SOUTH. James O'Rourke.

Comedy Relief.

In all stage productions, no matter how melodramatic, there is injected an element known as "comic relief." When the audience is ready to burst a blood-vessel in worry for the poor heroine tied to the railroad track, there is always some clown to relieve the blood pressure by saying he'll track her down and save her. And so on.

Such letters as the above serve the same purpose in the daily routine of a job such as mine. So much of the mail that comes to this desk is solemn and serious and tragic, so much of the material deals with world, national or local problems that sometimes craziness from over-seriousness doesn't seem far away. It is then that the gods of chance send a good laugh, such as the letter reproduced above, to drive away the glooms and break the monotony.

No Road Sand Explanation.

I've yet to hear an explanation for the presence of all that sand on the paving of Piedmont avenue, south of North avenue.

Have had several letters from others who say that thoroughfare and all are as puzzled as I am. If the explanation doesn't come to hand soon, I'll have to exert myself to the extent of a telephone call to the city street department and ask why and how come.

A Book To Read.

Let me recommend a book called "Eleven Were Brave." It is a story based upon the downfall of France, published about a year ago. It is factual fiction and many of the incidents told in its pages are being announced to the world as live news today.

It gives a clear insight into the whys of France's collapse, if you are well enough informed to separate the history from the probable truths and the fictional trimming. The title? The vote of the French cabinet for surrender to Hitler was 14 to 11.

They Must Have Known

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—In continuing this discussion of the crooked government of a local of the movie operators' union in Newark I want to emphasize the fact that William Green, the president of the AFL, and other high officers of the organization which is now holding its annual convention in Seattle, simply could not have been ignorant of the facts of the case as presented in the chancery court of New Jersey.

It was a shocking case and yet they subsequently permitted George Browne, the Chicago gangster, who is president of the national organization of the movie employees, to become a vice president of the AFL and a member of its supreme governing body, the executive council. And Louis Kauffman, the racketeer, who was denounced by the court for keeping American workmen in the status of serfs and compelling them to perform work for which he drew the pay, was permitted to remain in power as business agent of the Newark local until this very day.

Here is what Vice Chancellor Berry said:

Overwhelming Evidence

This complaint (of extortion) is based on the contention of many of the junior members (non-voters or serfs of the union officials) that they were required to pay certain officers sums ranging from $100 to $800 as the price of being awarded certain picture operator jobs and that they were also required to kick back to the officers from $5 to $25 a week. This charge is vigorously denied but the evidence supporting it is overwhelming and justifies the conclusion that it is well founded.

"It is admitted that the local has a virtual monopoly of operators' positions within its jurisdiction. In actual practice the business agent (Kauffman) is the dictator and controls every such job. His word is law. The theater managers know from experience that they have to request the business manager to assign operators to their theaters. They are not permitted to deal directly. The testimony discloses that men who were passing graft usually had steady employment. It is too plain for argument that nominal control of jobs was in the local and actual control in the business manager and that the members who have acquiesced in this practice have surrendered to the local and its officers their right of freedom of contract of employment.

Against Public Policy

"The constitution of this state provides that 'all men are by nature free and independent and have certain natural and unalienable rights, among which are those of enjoying and defending life and liberty, acquiring, possessing and protecting property and of pursuing and obtaining safety and happiness.' It is against public policy that the individual should surrender his right of contract of employment, and the right to the sale of his own labor, to any other individual or organization 'except to the extent necessary to subserve the public interest.'

"The instant cases present but new examples of that spirit of revolt by the rank and file of labor against autocracy and dictatorship within the union. It is unfortunate not only for labor but for society in general that such conditions as disclosed in these cases can exist. Union autocracy, whether applied internally or externally, is equally reprehensible. Labor unions had their origin in the ancient guilds of foreign countries. In this country they were born of necessity arising from the unconscionable conduct of capitalists and employers making virtual slaves of their employees. But the cure which was sought for these ills via the union has, in many instances of which the instant cases present a fair example, proved much worse than the disease itself. The ills have been increased manifold by the unconscionable conduct of union officials and racketeering business agents.

Enslavement To Union Leaders

It is such conduct as this which has persuaded in by so-called labor leaders, business agents, etc., in their lust for power and their greed for wealth which they vociferously condemn at times brings unions into disrepute. When Union leaders learn that enslavement of laborers to their autocratic whims is no less pernicious than the man decreed enslavement of labor by capital, there will be less necessity for intervention of the courts in labor disputes of this kind.

"The issue here is much deeper than appears on the surface. It is whether the inherent right of the individual to work out his own destiny shall be preserved; whether individuals are to be compelled to surrender to collectivism and collectivism in turn to dictatorship."

Kauffman, now indicted in the federal court in New York for racketeering through his union, was not challenged by any authority in the AFL after this denunciation and the proof of his grafting practices in 1934, and he remains the boss of the local whose men he reduced to the status of serfs, by authority of a charter from the AFL.

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Friday, October 9, 1891:

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

POLICE REFORMS Without at all meaning to rush in where even political angels fear to tread, I would like to submit a few ideas about police reform, now that the new committee so generously has asked any and all so to do.

In the first place, there are two political factions at dagger points and neither of them can come into court with absolutely clean hands.

The police committee can't function without conflict if there is a political fight within the council setup. The present committee ran into trouble, as will all committees, because of the system.

It is the system which is most at fault.

There are 547 rules in the police book. That's ridiculous. One of them says the chief shall be the executive.

In another place there is a rule which says the police committee shall have the executive or administrative functions. The two words are employed, both meaning the same.

The rules say the committee shall hold the hearings, make the promotions and generally manage the police department.

Since it is easy enough if one administration has a large majority. In the present setup there is about a fifty-fifty split.

An immediate revision of the police rules, removing all conflicts and setting up clearly and definitely the duties and powers of the chief and the committee, would remove most of the trouble. Unless that is done no real lasting progress will be made. The 547 rules might well be revised and reduced to 100.

Since our government is based on a system of checks and balances, it might not be wise to make an absolute dictator of any department head. It is important to clearly define and sustain his powers and duties.

PROMOTION PLANS

The rules say, for instance, the chief may nominate five men for promotion in any one position.

It was on this rule the break came. Until that time there had been no complaint from the chief.

The rule is a bad one. The present promotion procedure is one of the great evils of the system.

Promotion ought to be on the basis of selection and a written examination. Those selected to take the examination would be graded on examinations themselves, which now are fifth grade in their requirements, should be raised.

The police department members, with some exceptions, do not make a good appearance. It has been charged for years that some 25 or 30 men on the force were no longer physically fit to continue as officers. This ought to be easy to discover.

Every policeman knows that merit does not mean promotion. That always has been true. Promotion has been obtained through-out all our police history without any tests or without any real plan. It involves patronage, politics and pressures.

Every mayor knows of the efforts made to win his good will. Every chief knows of the old-made politics in the department.

A revision of the rules and the establishment of definite rules of procedure would take us a long way on the road to police reform.

POLITICAL ROWS

One trouble has been that so many persons have been shouting "Ain't it awful!" and haven't been able to produce a constructive suggestion.

The mayor came forward with one suggestion—the bringing in of a trained man from the FBI.

Another suggestion created the present committee headed by Mr. Preston Arkwright.

This committee came about through the clash of political forces.

Out of it may come the first real police reform in years, if we except the very fine reduction of traffic deaths in 1939 and 1940 and the adoption of the one-way streets plan in 1941. That plan, incidentally, was worked out by a committee appointed by the mayor.

We've got two intense political factions, and that will do more good than harm if any one of those persons who believe we must have politics if our government is to continue in its present form.

The great danger point we had reached was that an impasse was at hand and bitterness over factional differences were about to create walls of hatred and revenge which would have held back the city's progress for years.

The new committee will work out a solution.

We then will have to wait and see what will be the political integrity of the two forces. There again we have the need for the retention of some well-defined plan of checks and balances. There is no need for hysteria.

The first step well could be a committee to recodify the police rules and regulations; to remove the present political and patronage pressures in promotions by setting up a system of examinations for those selected as eligible to take them. And by raising the entrance requirements.

Those would be my starting suggestions.

The system is more at fault than any individual or group.

The Way to Discourage Spending

Is to Make It Too Expensive

By ROBERT QUILEN.

It is generally agreed that the income tax is the fairest. Yet there is another and similar tax that is equally fair and much more necessary.

It is a tax on spending. And it is necessary now, as never before, because the present purpose of taxation is not only to get revenue but to prevent inflation by encouraging saving and discouraging spending.

A tax on expenditures would be fair, for it would not only tax each citizen according to his ability to pay, but also in proportion to his ability to enjoy the good things of this world—his ability to command and consume the products of his fellows.

There would be no tax on money spent for medical care, rent, benevolence and education. And there would be an arbitrary tax-free food allowance of $10 a month for each person.

Savings would be untaxed, and thus thrift would be rewarded and spending penalized. The miser who bought nothing would escape the tax entirely, while the spendthrift would pay in proportion to his self-indulgence.

Your annual report of expenditures, made each January, would read something like this:

Income	$5,000.00
Rent	480.00
Food ($10 a month for each member of the family)	600.00
Taxes of every kind	370.00
Doctor and medicine	100.00
Education of children	130.00
Amount saved (in banks, insurance, stocks, bonds, real estate or permanent improvements to property)	1,000.00

Total expenditures $2,680.00

This would account for $2,680 of your income, and the law would assume that the remaining $2,320 was spent for "consumer goods."

On this sum you would pay the expenditure tax.

The tax would be graduated, as the income tax is. On each dollar of the first $1,000, you would pay 5 per cent; on the second $1,000, 6 per cent; the tax increasing 1 per cent on each thousand, so that a family able to spend $96,000 a year would pay 100 per cent on the last thousand of the 96.

An ordinary sales tax would not serve the purpose, for a tax collected on individual sales cannot be totaled and therefore the tax cannot be graduated.

Dudley Glass

Chap who dropped by parachute to the summit of the Devil's Tower in Wyoming won his $50 bet and spent five nights in the nice fresh air.

He also caused a bunch of skilled mountain climbers to spend six days rigging up steps and ladders to get him down. And cost somebody enough money to support 17 families for a month.

So what? How much did he add to the world's store of information? His peak had been scaled, by foot and fingernails, once before, and his predecessor reported no radium mines, no jeweled idols, no nothing but mountain breezes and fog.

Our neighbor once owned a valuable cat—at least, he considered it valuable because he paid $25 for it as a kitten—which climbed a tall tree in the front yard and was afraid to come down. It finally required the services of the fire department to get him down. And the risk of a fireman's neck or legs. And he bit the fireman on the neck.

Our neighbor didn't value that cat so highly after that.

To complete the record, said cat ascended said tree next day. And got out on a limb and yowled for rescue. Our neighbor said "to-hell-with-that-cat" and remarked he could stay up there until the tree rotted down. Which looked like an impasse. I offered to shoot said cat out of said tree and the neighbor agreed. But his wife said that would be cruel. There was quite an argument until I remembered I didn't have a gun and couldn't have hit the Healey building with it from across the street even if I'd had one.

So everybody retired to rest—if the cat would co-operate and cease yowling.

Along about 2 a. m. it started raining. At first a gentle drizzle. Later a gullywasher.

So Mr. Cat decided the tree-sitting was out of date. And came down the tree. Probably backward, digging his claws into the trunk. But we wouldn't know about that. He was yowling at his owner's kitchen door at dawn. And he hasn't climbed any more trees.

Rattler Slayer

Courageous woman is Mrs. J. C. Webb Jr. of Plains, down in Webster county. Driving down the road she saw a rattlesnake in her way. She got out of her car, gathered a few rocks—and how she found rocks in that region the started crawling. Then she took Ellaville Sun falls to explain—and hammered said reptile until he straightened out of his coil and a tire tool and finished him off. He had 13 rattles and the usual button. The button, I infer, is there to keep the rattles from falling off.

He Reached Peak—And So What? Who Pays the Big Bill?

But we all have our weaknesses. The great Alexander of Macedonia, we are told, was dreadfully afraid of cats. If it wasn't Alexander it was two other fellows from Thermopylae, so don't trouble to phone, wire or write. Anyway—Mrs. Webb confesses she's fearfully afraid of spiders.

Wonder how she stands on bats? I've known women who would stand up to a burglar, a brush salesman or the installment man who had called for that piano with a truck. But I've never heard of one who wouldn't shut herself in a closet—with a towel over her head—if a bat invaded the premises.

One of our hotels—maybe two or three—advertises 300 rooms with 300 baths. But that isn't half spacious enough to house a woman and a bat.

Not My Story

Julian Boehm told me this story, with names, addresses and date, so I know it's true. Julian has never been known to tell a lie when the truth would serve just as well.

It was about an elderly couple in an Atlanta hotel. The old gentleman woke up in the morning and couldn't find his removable teeth. He was pretty sure his wife had emptied the tumbler where the teeth rested of nights into the plumbing. So he paid 10 bucks to have the plumbing torn up. No teeth.

Two days of milk toast, soft boiled eggs, soup and similar soft diet. Then the old gentleman went home and looked up his dentist son-in-law.

"How long will it take me to get some new teeth?" he inquired. "Let me take a look at your gums," asked the dentist. He looked.

"The devil," he remarked. "Your teeth are in your mouth. Both sets. You must have forgotten to take them out when you went to bed that night."

And so they were. It seems impossible, but Julian raised his right hand and swore to it. As for me, I can't testify on mere hearsay.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

ADD IT UP.

The Pennsylvania "Senator" had scarcely got rolling a week ago this afternoon, on its run from Washington to New York, when those of us in one of the observation sections found ourselves with one of those rare personalities, peculiarly typical, I think, of our American life. I guess he must be every day of 75 years old, maybe more. He has lived mostly in Washington, but he has been everywhere.

It was 1 o'clock, and the second game of the World Series would be coming in on the radio within 30 minutes. In the group was one of the best-known Washington columnists, and he started the conversation by asking the old philosopher what he thought of the President's statement about religious freedom in Russia. The old gentleman cast his eyes around the circle, for we had all pulled our chairs as near him as we could. He simply shook his head. That was enough on that subject. The columnist took another line. He asked: "What did you think of Jim Farley's answer to the reporter's question about whether Roosevelt would run for the fourth term?" "Yeah, just like Jim, wasn't it?" He's smart, whether you agree with him or not.

Slowly filling his pipe, the old philosopher finally looked at the columnist, and said: "Go to the board, son, and put down these figures, and add 'em up—"

"First, the statement there in the Star this afternoon by that gal named Helen Essary in her column, 'Dear Washington,' in which she says: 'Franklin D. Roosevelt will run for the Presidency for the fourth time in 1944, and will be elected.' Mind you, that goes for the women."

"Second, put down the editorial in Carter Glass' Lynchburg News this morning, in which he discusses the President's move to double the number of people receiving financial benefit from the government. That goes for labor and the folks on relief."

"Third, put down the article by Wendell Wilkie in this month's American Magazine. That goes for the opposition. And I pause to make this comment to you boys—you're going to see the doggoned presidential race in 1944 this country has yet known."

"Fourth, put down there Hitler,

2 Here Contribute Articles to Post

Two Atlanta newspapermen have "crashed the slicks" with stories in the Saturday Evening Post—one this week and one next. Davenport Steward tells about the English flying cadets at Albany and America in his "As the British See Us," which runs in the current issue of the Post, while Rufus Jarman describes the eye-opening promotional "genius" of Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of Oglethorpe University, in a story which is published in the next Post. Jarman's story is titled "Come One, Come All, to Oglethorpe."

John A. White, mayor pro tem, and the Rev. Father William Longergan will be the principal speakers at the dinner. White, who served during the World War, will speak on "It Happened in 1917."

"CHRISTIAN SOLDIERS"

EDITORIAL PRAISED
Editor, Constitution: I wish to express my sincere appreciation of one of the finest editorials I have read in many days in The Atlanta Constitution. I refer to the main editorial on September 24, "Onward Christian Soldiers."

As a worker with young people, I was moved to deep emotion when I saw the Crusade song had been chosen for the historic meeting of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill out there, "somewhere on the Atlantic," and when The Constitution emphasized the incident by making it the special feature of the editorial page, it was made doubly impressive in importance. I have read the articles stressing spiritual values as they have appeared in The Constitution from time to time, and heard them receive warm praise and appreciation, especially from those who have deep convictions that a permanent healing for the world's ills will come only "with the cross of Jesus going on before."

The courageous stand and an all-out declaration for faith in Christianity by a paper of the influence and popularity of The Constitution, will reach many people that a sermon from the pulpit could not directly reach, because of indifference to church worship and church going, and I am sure a host of untiring workers in the cause join me in this expression of gratitude and the best of good wishes.

FINDS CONSTITUTION IN STEP WITHOUT FAIR

Editor, Constitution: With the times so out of joint, it is heartening to note one department of life that is not askew or one individual who is on his job.

Editor, Constitution: In Mr. McGill's recent article regarding the forthcoming Atlanta Community Fund Drive, it might be well to bear in mind that as far as our actual net contributions are concerned, with higher income taxes, if we make the amounts of our subscriptions more and deduct from these the increased income tax, we will find that we might be able to say "I give personally so much and my friend, Uncle Sam, joins in giving with me." ## Plans Formed For Patriotic Group Meeting Set Tuesday, Wednesday, Convention Will Be 4-Way Affair.

Plans for a four-way convention of patriotic organizations here next Tuesday and Wednesday were being completed yesterday by McWhorter Milner, general chairman.

Meeting together will be the United Confederate Veterans, the Sons of Confederate Veterans, Order of the Stars and Bars and the Confederate Southern Memorial Association (not official). The Governor and the mayor will greet delegates at joint sessions to be held at the Ansley hotel.

A program which includes social aspects as well as business will start at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning and Wednesday night in the grand hall, which will be led by Dr. William Dancy, of Savannah.

Delegates will eat barbecue Tuesday at Grant Park, have tea that afternoon at the Governor's mansion, and attend the annual banquet of the Sons of Confederate Veterans that night. A feature of Tuesday's sessions will be an address by Julian Harris, a member of the Stone Mountain Memorial board, who has been selected to sculpture a memorial on the face of the monolith.

Marksmanship Test Costs Macon Man $25

MACON, Ga., Oct. 8.—Patrolman J. I. Beck testified that a Macon resident sought to display his marksmanship by firing a 12-gauge shotgun at a dishpan.

He blasted the dishpan, the patrolman said. Also he blew a hole in the side of his house and spattered the bed of a neighbor with pellets. The neighbor, fortunately, had vacated the bed just five minutes before.

Recorder George M. Nottingham decided it was worth $25 to fire a gun in the city limits.

Two First-Rate New Pictures To Open Today

Variety of Entertainment Offered Atlanta This Week.

By DUDLEY GLASS.

Two first-rate new ones at first-run theaters start today. "Hold Back the Dawn" is at the Fox with Charles Boyer, Paulette Goddard and the ever-beautiful Olivia de Havilland.

The Rialto promises something extra—Fred Astaire and Rita Hayworth in "You'll Never Get Rich." A new Maissie film, this time, "Gold Rush Maissie," starts at the Rhodes. With Ann Sothern.

"Honky-Tonk," with Clark Gable and Lana Turner, did so well at Loew's Grand it's being held for another week. "Nothing But the Truth," with Bob Hope, comes downtown from the Fox to the Paramount.

Three Stars at Fox.

"Hold Back the Dawn," starting at the Fox today, features Charles Boyer, Olivia de Havilland and Paulette Goddard.

Boyer, a European no-good, finds himself in Mexico, with not desire to get into the good old United States, where he can cause a lot of trouble.

Best bet is to marry an American girl. He finds a pretty school teacher, Olivia de Havilland, whose husband he kills. Miss Goddard is the inevitable female menace, always ready to put sand in the bearings.

The cast includes the able Walter Abel, little Billy Lee and a long string of others. Miss de Havilland's home address is given as Azusa, Cal., in this film. Sounds screwy—but it's a real town. Citizens made it up from "Everything from A to Z in the U. S. A." Which is no worse than Georgia's "Omega." Which indicates the last of everything.

Astaire and Hayworth

"You'll Never Get Rich" opens today at the Rialto theater, the newest of Columbia musical and dancing romances. It brings Fred Astaire, with his new dancing partner, Rita Hayworth, in a story of the selective draft and Army life that is divided into heart-warming romance, rib-cracking comedy and musical and dancing numbers.

Cole Porter composed the songs and music for this production. Sidney Lanfield directed and Samuel Bischoff produced.

Robert Alton was dance director and some of the ensembles he built around the dancing of the Astaire-Hayworth team are said to make your eyes pop.

In addition to the two dancing stars, the cast includes Robert Benchley, the columnist who turned stage and screen comedian; John Hubbard, Osa Massen, Frieda Inescort, Guinn "Big Boy" Williams and many another favorite.

The story is about a dance director for a stage show who is caught in the draft, about his entry into Army life and about the lovely chorine of the show who finally realizes she is in love with him.

Interspersed are songs and dances and comedy galore. Even a touch of life in the guardhouse.

Gable Just Too Good

Clark Gable and Lana Turner—and Frank Morgan as the bourbon-soaked old judge—made such a hit in "Honky-Tonk" at Loew's Grand, it has been decided to hold the film over another week—postponing "Smiling Through," with Jeanette MacDonald until next Thursday.

"Honky-Tonk" is a glorified western. Pioneer town. Gamblers, barkeepers, two-gun men. You know.

Gable is a gambler who has been chased out of many a town. Miss Turner is a sweet young thing who tracks her father to this wild west. Gable is not a marrying man—but he wakes up and finds a wedding ring on Lana's finger.

Plenty of action, a little shooting, good characters with whiskers—and excellent acting by Claire Trevor, who puts quite a bit of Mae West's top-of-the-mouth accent into several lines. You can almost hear her saying, "Beulah, peel me a grape."

'Maissie' at Rhodes

A "Maissie" picture, never before shown in Atlanta, starts at the Rhodes theater today. This one is "Gold Rush Maissie," and it gives Ann Sothern a chance at playing a western gal, busted and up against it.

Much of the background is a ghost town on the edge of the desert. Cactuses—or is it cacti—and alkali and dust. And characters. Including Slim Sumnersville. And a bad little girl, who is Virginia Weider. Miss Sothern has to leave her thousand-dollar dresses at home and get into overalls and a pair of boots the rats wouldn't eat.

It seems that when the ghost town comes to life—from a sudden influx of migrants—it lacks a night club and glamour, and all that. So Maissie starts one.

There's also the homesteading theme and water rights and stalwart citizens and wicked capitalists. But Maissie gets 'em trid.

Hope at Paramount
"Nothing But the Truth," starring Bob Hope and Paulette Goddard and featuring Edward Arnold, is transferred today from the Fox to the Paramount. It is a good show, most favorably reviewed last week.
Story is about a young fellow

TWINKLING STAR—Ilona Massey, exotic Hungarian movie actress, and her husband, Alan Curtis, are seen as they were welcomed to Atlanta yesterday. who thinks anybody can tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth for at least 24 hours. He even makes a bet on it. Ten grand—money collected for charity by Miss Goddard, who trusts him to double it overnight.

He has a tough day. Did you ever try to stick to the absolute truth that long? Try it some time. Especially if a woman tries to frame you and you have to explain this and that. How'd you like to explain how you just happened to be in this lady's state-room, with no clothes, at midnight. You'd be innocent, of course. But are you married?

Well, that's the situation, along with others. You'll sympathize with Mr. Hope.

New One at Capitol
A new film presenting the noted "Dead End Kids" starts at the Capitol today to run until Sunday, when "Dressed to Kill" will replace it.

The picture is "Bewery Blitzkrieg," with four of the original "Dead End" boys and a couple of added starters.

The story is about one Muggs McGinnis, played by Leo Gorcey. Muggs—as you'd guess by his moniker—is a tough youngster who bosses all the blocks near the docks. You can see his finish—or can you? He makes either the penitentiary or congress—and your guess is as good as mine. I don't know the ending.

Forget-Me-Nots Go On Sale Tomorrow

Nearly 1,000 Atlanta women will be stationed on the streets tomorrow from 7 o'clock in the morning until 5 o'clock in the afternoon to sell flowers in the city's annual forget-me-not drive. All funds received are used to supplement pensions of disabled World War veterans.

Alleged Nazi Propagandist Free on Bail

Indictment Charges Failure To Set Forth Facts in Registration

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(AP)—George Sylvester Viereck, 56-year-old journalist described by the government as chief German propagandist in this country, was released in $15,000 bail today on an indictment charging him with failure to set forth material facts in his State Department registration as a representative of a foreign government.

He said he would plead in Washington, D. C., Friday, where the five-count sealed indictment, returned by a grand jury there, was opened as soon as Viereck was taken into custody this morning at his Riverside drive apartment by federal agents.

"He is one of the most serious menaces in this country," William Power Maloney, special assistant to the attorney general, told United States Commissioner Isaac Platt, before whom Viereck was arraigned. "He has received from the German government as much as $40,000 in one year to carry on his propaganda work."

The indictment set forth that Viereck consulted with divers persons on matters pertaining to political interests, public policy and public relations. It said he had prepared and disseminated speeches relating to those matters and that this information was printed in books and the Congressional Record and broadcast by radio.

One of Viereck's lawyers, Emil Morison Jr., arguing for lower bail, said that "this (Viereck's) employment with the German government has ceased, as he was employed by the German bureau of information and that employment stopped with the closing of the bureau last July."

Commissioner Platt had held Viereck in $20,000 bail earlier in the day, but Federal Judge Samuel Mandelbaum later reduced it on application of the defense to $15,000.

Viereck, whose general appearance belies his age, is a German-born, naturalized American citizen.

As editor of "The Fatherland" during the last war, Viereck was regarded as one of the chief German propagandists in this country. He is registered with the State Department as American correspondent for the Munchener Neueste Nachrichten, a Munich newspaper.

Jury for Browne, Bioff Trial Chosen

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(AP)—A jury was completed today to hear evidence against George E. Browne, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees (AFL) and William Bioff, west coast labor leader, charged with violation of the federal anti-racketeering act.

Prospective jurors were asked if they were prejudiced for or against labor unions or if they read a newspaper column written by Westbrook Pegler.

United States Attorney Mathias Herholt.

Had the Pope preceded him in death, the cardinal would have become acting Pontiff. Under Pius XII, he was chief penitentiary of the Catholic church, and gave absolution to the dying Pope on February 10, 1939.

Correa asserted in his opening statement that Browne and Bioff demanded $2,000,000 from the executives of four major motion picture companies under threat of wrecking their business.

Helen Morgan, Torch Singer, Succumbs at 41

Husband of Nine Weeks, Mother Are at Bedside in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Helen Morgan, the torch singer who rose to fame during the Ziegfeld era, died tonight in Henrotin hospital after an illness of three weeks.

Miss Morgan, who was 41, had been in critical condition for the past several days, following an operation for removal of her spleen. She received many blood transfusions, both before and after the operation.

She was stricken here last month upon coming here to appear in a Loop theater and was forced to cancel the engagement and enter the hospital.

Her second husband, Lloyd Johnson, whom she married last July 27, and her mother, Mrs. Lulu Morgan, of High Falls, N. Y., had been at her bedside constantly for the past several days when physicians gave up hope for her recovery.

Two Pleas Heard By Prison Group

Clemency hearings for Dan Eidson, convicted in connection with the East Point floggings, and J. D. Lee, serving a life sentence for murder, were held yesterday before the State Prison and Parole Commission. No action was taken.

Eidson, who began serving 12 and six months sentences July 1, contended in his petition that he had been a good prisoner and that he had a wife and child to support.

Lee, who was convicted of the 1931 murder of Benny Litchstein, declared the judge and numerous jurors who convicted him were now recommending a pardon.

Cardinal Lauri Is Dead at 77

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 8.—(INS)—Lorenzo Cardinal Lauri, who ranked in the Roman Catholic hierarchy second only to Pope Pius XII, died today at the age of 77.

Cardinal Lauri, chamberlain (camerlengo) of the College of Cardinals, close friend and advisor of the Pontiff, sank rapidly in spite of an operation performed Monday.

Had the Pope preceded him in death, the cardinal would have become acting Pontiff. Under Pius XII, he was chief penitentiary of the Catholic church, and gave absolution to the dying Pope on February 10, 1939.

Correa asserted in his opening statement that Browne and Bioff demanded $2,000,000 from the executives of four major motion picture companies under threat of wrecking their business.

The Army IN GEORGIA

Civilian pilots who want to go into the Army can now get credit for up to 30 hours of their flying time, the War Department announced yesterday.

A change in regulations will permit Army Air Corps aviation cadets to receive credit for half the 60 hours of flying training requisite for graduation. The change will enable the War Department to take advantage of the civilian pilot training program and will lighten the burden on instructors and planes.

The full required ground course still will have to be taken by the fliers, no matter how many hours they have in the air. Consisting of 140 hours of training, the course includes instruction in mathematics, theory of flight, airplane engine, maps and air navigation, meteorology, and the operation, maintenance and repair of airplanes.

93,000,000 MILES—REQUIRES LOTS OF FUEL
Think of enough gasoline to take your jalopy to the sun, 93,000,000 miles away, urges the Fourth Corps Area quartermaster public relations department.

That will give you an idea of the amount of fuel needed to keep Uncle Sam's motor vehicles moving during the First Army maneuvers which Lieutenant General Hugh Drum is now conducting in 16 counties in North and South Carolina.

A total of 6,473,794 gallons of high-test gasoline, at a retail cost of approximately $1,424,060, was contracted for by the Fourth Corps Area quartermaster, for the thousands of trucks, reconnaissance cars and other vehicles the First Army is now operating during the war games.

RAF TRAINING HEAD

WILL VISIT SOUTHEAST

Air Marshal A. G. R. Carrod, in charge of the RAF training for the entire British Empire, will leave Washington tomorrow on an inspection tour of the Southeast Air Corps training center, so see how hundreds of his fellow countrymen are learning to fly in a foreign land.

He will tour all the southeastern states and will attend the Pan-American navigation training school at Miami from October 18 to 23. During the period, Brigadier General George E. Stratemeyer assistant chief of the Air Corps, will visit the school at Albany.

General Sleeps in His Pants

from his bed on a frosty morning. We are sitting at the moment in the operations truck of the 30th Division command post. Inside, the lights blaze brightly. Now and then somebody comes in the curtain door at the rear and leaves a slight crack. When this occurs a harsh voice outside demands to know what do you guys think this is. Why don't you come out here with a searchlight and signal them. Reds where you are.

In the heavy woods around this truck there are four other command trucks parked. We found where they were by running into them with our face.

Yet there is a beehive of activity inside each one, with lights, manufactured by a generator truck, throbbing gently off yonder in the woods somewhere, blazing brightly.

It took us three hours to find the place. We reached it over dirt roads that twisted and turned, and flew up in dust clouds that made us think for a while we had two lightning bugs for headlights. Every once in a while huge massive shapes would lumber at us through this gloom and we would take to the ditch to escape. They were trucks, driving blacked out. Out the side of these trucks as they passed we would catch blasts of acrimonious language demanding to know what we were doing driving along there lit up like a Christmas tree.

We thought it was a joke. Until a soldier in a tin hat stepped out in the road and told us if we went any further we would have to cut our lights out. We cut them out and sat there until the road began to take some semblance of vague, dim shape. Then we went on. The road turned off into woods. We knew it turned off into woods because we could feel large trees scraping against the fenders of our machine. Once there was something, too, that sounded like a barbed wire fence.

Finally another soldier in a tin hat stepped out and told us we couldn't drive any further. We asked him where the command post was. He pointed into the blackness, and said "over yonder." "Over yonder" lay through a field and into some woods. We found it when we stumbled over something large, which grunted. It was a colonel. It turned out to be a very pleasant colonel, and the man we wished to see.

His name was Lieutenant Colonel Richard D. Gleaves. He is regimental G-2. Which means he is responsible for knowing where the enemy is at all times. He is also responsible for taking care of wandering newspapermen who stumble into headquarters in the dead of night, wearing their Sunday suits and trying to find some place to sleep.

He told us what was going on. We were, he said, at the command post of the Thirtieth Division, from which the activities of a force of 19,000 men are directed.

Those moves we heard around us in the bushes, he said, came from the men of headquarters company, boys from Griffin, Ga. mostly, who man the typewriters of the command post.

Down there four miles to the south, he said, lay the 59th Brigade, the 121st Infantry Regiment, made up of boys from Albany and Barnesville and Jackson and Macon and Washington, Ga., and a dozen other little Georgia towns, and the 118th Infantry, mostly South Carolina boys. At dawn in the morning, he said, they would move out as brigade combat teams, heading through the swamps and across the hills to the attack. Behind them would follow the 118th Field Artillery, the Savannah boys, in support.

We listened to all this and then asked the colonel if that tree-frog over there in the bushes didn't keep him from sleeping. He said it that constant "beep-beep" stopped for any length of time he sure as — couldn't sleep. That wasn't a tree frog, he said. That was a short wave radio. It was bringing in messages from reconnaissance patrols scattered along a six-mile front.

There was cavalry out there, he said. And infantry patrols, afoot and on motorcycles, and in swift cruising jeeps. While the attack troops slept they were out there groping in the darkness for the enemy. And away to the south there somewhere the enemy had its patrols out, the two forces creeping through the night like blind ants, their feelers seeking contact and flinching back when it was made.

Goos "Beep-Beep."
Miles away there would be the sharp crack of rifle fire. Then the little radio down in the trees would go "beep-beep" and the words would come in that the 118th Infantry had captured a Red sergeant and two privates, that a motor patrol of the 59th had clashed with enemy scouts at the crossing of Big Water, that First Corps had spotted a Red bivouac.

All this fragmentary information pours in until things begin to take shape. The big maps begin to show how the enemy dispositions lie. Long before dawn, when the general rises, he will look at this map. He will go over it with Colonel Clarence A. Martin, his plans and operations officer. They will lay their plans. This is the crux of soldiering, this knowing where your foe is, how strong he is, where he seems to be headed.

The general still sleeps with his pants on, though. There's always danger of some far-circling flanking force dodging patrols and storming a camp that's careless.

Pianist Shows Accurateness in Concert Here

Elizabeth Travis Opens Music Club's Series.

By EUGENIA BRIDGES HASTY.

With a toss of her shoulder-length tresses and a swish of her Alice blue gown, the dainty little pianist from Boston who opened the Atlanta Music Club's informal concert last night, won the approval of an audience that overflowed the Woman's Club ballroom and crowded the adjoining terrace.

Opening with Hummel's "Rondo Favorito" and continuing with the "Partita in B Flat," Elizabeth Travis, the 28-year-old veteran and one-time prodigy of Charles Dennee, gave an interesting performance. The Bach numbers were remarkable for her perfect staccato technique, though the tonal quality was somewhat metallic.

The audience warmed up more to her Brahms' "Sonata in F Minor," in which her two distinct techniques were apparent. The "Allegro Maestoso" and the "Scherzo" in which she used a commanding, downward attack, seemed the most inspired of the five movements, "Andante" and "Intermezzo" revealing the light, wrist stroke.

Miss Travis plays with complete disinterestedness, surely and accurately. Never referring to a score, she went through the difficult program with complete abandon. Her graceful performance at the keyboard and the fragile, almost spiritual air surrounding her stage presence, flavors her performance.

For the last half of the program, Miss Travis included three Chopin numbers: "Berceuse," "Etude in G Flat Major" and "Etude in C Sharp Minor." Charles Dennee's "The Whirling Doll," "La Danse d'Olaf," by Plick-Mangalagalli and "Russian Dance" from the "Petrouchka" suite, by Stravinsky, completed the evening's repertoire.

That's why this command post is on wheels, ready to roll in a minute. Maps are drawn in waxed crayon on cellophane. They can be obliterated with the swipe of a handkerchief. Plans are ready so that every paper which might give information to the enemy can be destroyed in a flash.

Even the liaison officers from the headquarters of other Blue troops must carry identification. A sharp lookout is kept for spies. Men man the klaxon that warns of parachute troops, the big triangle that sounds the gas alarm day and night. Everybody is on his toes.

Even us. For as we stumble over the base of the ancient oak where someone had thoughtfully placed us a sleeping bag the colonel gave us a bit of friendly advice.

"Be sure and shake that bag good before you crawl in it, son," he said. "I found a big highland moccasin in mine the other night."

Senator Demands OPM Explain Low-Bid Rejection

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Representative Smith, Democrat, Virginia, declared today in the house that the delay in awarding a $1,000,000 housing contract in Wayne, Mich., to the low bidder arose from the "most bold, brazen and outrageous effort to defraud the United States government of which I ever heard."

He suggested that indictments be brought against the American Federation of Labor and an OPM official, whom he did not name. Meantime, the Senate Defense Investigating Committee, headed by Senator Truman, Democrat, Missouri, requested an explanation of the situation from the Office of Production Management.

Truman said the committee wanted to find out whether a fixed policy on the part of defense officials to favor the AFL in housing construction was reflected by the action of John M. Carmody, Federal Works Administrator, in holding up the contract on which P. J. Currier was low bidder by about $400,000.

Currier, a manufacturer of prefabricated housing, employs CIO workers. Carmody told the committee yesterday that the prospect of repercussions from the AFL and the labor stabilization policies of the OPM led him to hold up the award of a contract to Currier.

Smith, interrupting debate on the lend-lease appropriation, charged that the situation arose from "a conspiracy between the OPM and the AFL" manifested by a stabilization agreement of July 22.

"The effect of that stabilization agreement," he declared, "was that the AFL obtained a monopoly on all the construction of the United States government."

To give employment and to get employment . . . A Want Ad in The Constitution is equally effective in both cases.

TALKS ON DEFENSE—United States Senator Richard B. Russell is shown here last night as he addressed the Business and Professional Women's Club on national defense. With him is President Gertrude Harris.

Russell Lauds Women's Work For Defense

Africa Probably Next Battleground, Senator Says Here.

By next year Detroit will be producing more tanks per month than the whole of Germany, according to Senator Russell, who last night addressed the Business and Professional Women's Club at a banquet at the Georgian Terrace hotel.

The rising tide of supplies to Great Britain has already begun to flow in vast quantities, he said. "A large part of them," he added, "are going to north Africa because of the feeling that the next crucial battlefield will be there."

The senator praised the work of women's clubs throughout the country for their work for national defense and in promotion of the sale of defense bonds.

"Staggering sums must be spent," he said, "in changing from a peace economy to one of national defense. The recent new taxes are but a taste of those to come. We are willing, however, to sacrifice dollars and cents to save our fundamental rights."

Praises Roosevelt.

"President Roosevelt is one of the greatest Presidents of all times, and I have followed him down to this hour. His foreign policy is your foreign policy because it has been adopted by democratic methods."

The senator praised the influence in politics of women during the past 20 years, saying that they had brought about more social reform than had been achieved since the founding of the republic.

"The rights all Americans adhere to, freedom of religious worship, free speech, a free press and the right of petition have been trampled under in two-thirds of the globe," he said. "If Hitler had kept his strange and monstrous philosophy in Germany, it would have been no great concern of us, but he has many times given us notice that he does not intend to keep it at home."

Senator Russell was introduced by Marion Allen, collector of internal revenue. Mrs. Gertrude Harris presided, and Miss Grace Hartley was chairman of the program committee. Miss Constance MacHolt, program co-ordinator, gave a resume of what the Professional Women's Club had done during the year, mentioning the formation of a women's rifle team.

"We have a school, we shall know how," she said. Mrs. Walter Ward sang two selections. Her accompanist was Mrs. B. C. Adams.

The club, at its luncheon at the Athletic Club at noon today, will hear Congressman Robert Ramo speak on the subject, "Facing Facts." At 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, Mrs. Z. P. Peterson and Miss Cecil Fuller, representing the club, will conduct a forum over WSB on the subject of "Education," with Senator Russell and J. I. Allman, of the state department of education, as guests.

Federal School Aid for South Is Advocated

Dr. Wells at Dublin Says Government Help Is Necessary.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
DUBLIN, Ga., Oct. 8.—The federal government must provide aid for schools if all persons are to have equal educational advantages, Dr. Guy H. Wells, president of Georgia State College for Women at Milledgeville, told a gathering of 1,000 teachers from the sixth district here today.

Speaking before the Sixth District Georgia Education Association convention, the educator declared that the south is unable to provide educational advantages on a par with the north.

"We must have additional funds if we are to give all citizens an education equal to that afforded in other sections of our country," he stated.

"The federal government is insisting more and more that such advantages be made available, and if we do so, we must have aid from those able to provide it."

Knox Walker, of Atlanta, president of the Georgia Education Association, also spoke, outlining the aims of the organization.

"If our school system is to be improved, teachers must also have more assurance of security in their jobs, and salaries commensurate with those paid in other lines of work requiring equal skill and training," he said.

Lauderdale County School Superintendent Elbert Mullis presided at the meeting. Departmental conferences followed the main session.

Funeral services for Mrs. Hespia Parker Swilling, 82-year-old member of a pioneer Georgia family, will be held at 11:30 o'clock this morning at Spring Hill, and interment will be in West View cemetery. She died Tuesday afternoon at a hospital here.

A resident of Atlanta for 40 years, Mrs. Swilling was educated at the University of Mississippi and taught school in northeast Georgia for a number of years.

Mrs. Swilling was one of the founders of the Oakhurst Baptist church here, and she built 19 houses near the church. She was instrumental in enlarging the church's membership. Before she came to Atlanta, she served as postmistress at Carnesville, Ga., having been appointed to that position by President McKinley. She resided here at 1313 Briarcliff road.

Two Soldiers Seriously Hurt In Maneuvers

155 Millimeter Howitzer and Tractor Fall From Bridge.

CAMDEN, S. C., Oct. 8.—(AP)—The first serious accident of the First Army's maneuvers in the Carolinas was recorded today as plans were made for stepping up the tempo of the field training for the remainder of the week.

Sergeant Romeo Compelle and Private Elmer F. Biggs, of the 108th Field Artillery, 28th Division, were reported badly hurt when a 155-millimeter howitzer and the prime mover pulling it off a country road fell from a bridge near Mt. Croghan, S. C. The 28th is made up of Pennsylvania guardsmen.

Compelle and Biggs were riding on the prime mover, a four and a half ton tractor used for hauling heavy artillery. They were taken to the first evacuation hospital near Rockingham, N. C. Ten other soldiers hurt in the same accident were discharged from the hospital after receiving first aid.

The 359,000 officers and men participating in the current exercises were given a lull today as their next problems were worked out by staff officers. Rainy weather, which was feared as a probable offshoot of a tropical hurricane, did not materialize.

Mr., Mrs. Robert To Observe Wedding Anniversary Here

By SALLY FORTH.

WHEN "EVIE" AND "CHIP" ROBERT come to Atlanta this weekend, their visit will have double significance. Of course, their presence for the Notre Dame-Tech game Saturday will lend interest to the classic, but the most important feature will be the celebration of their wedding anniversary Saturday.

In observance of the auspicious date, the Roberts have planned two parties, the first to be a football breakfast gathering a few friends before the game. That evening they will be hosts to 20 guests at the dinner-dance at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Mrs. Robert is the former Evie Walker, of Washington, who knew and her marriage to "Chip" took place several years ago in London, England. They divide their time between Atlanta and Washington. Which reminds Sally to tell you that they have given up their apartment at the Mayflower hotel and are now residing at 2110 LeRoy place, northwest.

As for the coming weekend, the social calendar is being enlarged each day by new parties planned. In addition to the elaborate series previously announced, is the appetizer party at which Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Dick will be hosts. The affair will be held on Friday between 4 and 6 o'clock at the Dick residence on Habersham way.

On Sunday, Winthrop Smith, of New York, will form the inspiration for the luncheon to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Ryburn Clay at their country home, Lazy River Farm, on Spaulding drive.

Mr. Smith, who has many friends here made upon previous visits with Helen and Ryburn Clay, is senior partner of Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane. Among the other out-of-town guests who will attend are "Chip" and "Evie" Robert.

Coming from Birmingham to attend the gala weekend festivities are Mr. and Mrs. Allen Johnston, who will visit Mr. and Mrs. John Grant Jr. The Johnstons, who will arrive on Friday, will motor over to Athens that evening with their hosts to witness the Georgia-Mississippi football game. On Saturday the Tech-Notre Dame game and the attendant affairs will claim the attention of the attractive quartet.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Broadus, of Knoxville, will also spend the weekend here at the Georgian Terrace. Mr. and Mrs. Broadus are also close friends of Mr. and Mrs. Grant and their presence will enliven the social affairs.

JUST IN CASE it slipped your mind, the soldiers at Camp Gordon still have hearty appetites, and the Young Matrons' Circle for Tallulah Falls School is continuing its efforts to secure Sunday dinner invitations in private homes for them.

The circle, you know, began its appeal to Atlantans several weeks ago, with the result that dozens of men at the Naval Air Base have enjoyed southern hospitality at dinner guests of gracious hostesses.

Remember, you do not have to be a member of the Matrons' Circle to entertain a soldier at dinner. Do not procrastinate! Phone Mrs. Ralph McGill or Mrs. Wilmer C. Dutton today and state how many guests you will expect from Camp Gordon Air Base on Sunday.

Would you like to knit warm garments for the war-ravaged people of Great Britain? Get in touch with the Atlanta Chapter of the Red Cross at 848 Peachtree street—telephone VE. 4751. Your services will be welcomed and wool and instructions will be furnished to you.

Miss Long and Mr. Carnes Marry at Cathedral Rites

St. Philip's Cathedral formed the setting last evening for the marriage of Miss Carvel Grant Long, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald White Long, and William Boyd Barnett Carnes Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Boyd Carnes Jr., of Washington, D. C.

Rev. Charles E. Wood, of Marietta, officiated at 8:30 o'clock in the presence of relatives and out-of-town guests. He was assisted by Dean Raimundo de Ovies and a musical program was presented by Thomas Brumby.

The church was beautifully decorated with quantities of greenery and white flowers. The altar vases were filled with Easter lilies and white gladioli and the choir stall was banked with palms and seven-branched cathedral candelabra.

The entrance to the chancel was marked by urns filled with flowers, and lilies tied with white ribbons marked the pews reserved for members of the families.

Ushers were Robert Frost, Donald Lawrence, of Marietta; George Campbell and Joseph Crankshaw, and the groomsmen were Treville Lawrence and Nell Perkinson of Marietta; Owen Perry Jr., Van Platter, Lawrence Crankshaw and Wade Atkinson.

Miss Sally Cobb Johnson was the maid of honor and was becomingly gowned in silver blue satin made with a long fitted torso and a full skirt ending in a train. Her flowers were gold chrysanthemums arranged in an old-fashioned bouquet outlined with a gold marquisette ruffle.

The junior bridesmaids, who were Misses Jane Campbell, Loomis Childs, of Vicksburg, Miss, and Patricia Cortelyou, of Marietta, wore similar models. The bridesmaids were gowned in gold satin and carried duplicate bouquets.

The bride entered with her father, who gave her in marriage, and they met the groom and his best man, Ernest Lucas, of Washington, D. C., at the altar. Her blond loveliness was offset by her wedding gown of cream satin fashioned with a yoke of marquisette banded in shirred satin. The long, full skirt which widened to form a long train was trimmed with shirring around the hips.

She wore an old-fashioned bonnet of heirloom lace outlined with orange blossoms, and her veil, caught at the back of bonnet, was of illusion tulle. Her only ornament was a diamond spray which belonged to her grandmother, the late Mrs. John A. Grant.

Mrs. Long, the bride's mother, was gowned in mist blue chiffon and her flowers were purple orchids. Mrs. Carnes, the groom's mother, wore amethyst lace and her flowers were orchids.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Long entertained at a reception at their home on Pace's Ferry road. Throughout the home palms, ferns and tall baskets filled with white flowers were used as the decorations. The members of the receiving line stood before the fireplace in the living room which was banked with greenery. In the dining room the table was centered with a three-tiered bride's cake placed on a mound of ferns and white flowers.

Assisting in entertaining were Mesdames George Campbell Jr., Robert Frost, Joseph Crankshaw Jr., Victor Broman, Adrian Cortelyou, Donald Lawrence, Ewing Miles and Misses Virginia Richardson, Betty Medford and Martha Blalock.

The bridal couple left for a wedding trip to Quebec, Canada, and will later go to Kew Gardens, Long Island, N. Y., where they will reside. The bride traveled in a black wool suit and matching accessories. Completing her ensemble was a scarf of martens.

Circulation Is Your Fountain Of Youth

By Ida Jear, Kain.

Your circulation is the only fountain of youth you can count on. You get along fine as long as you are young because it is natural for youth to get enough exercise. But, right at the time you need exercise most it is easiest to sidestep. After 30 you have to go out of your way to give your circulation a jog.

The circulation of blood through the body is what supplies the tissues with oxygen from the lungs and with food from the digestive tract. The point to be made right here is that good circulation also depends on the food materials provided.

The circulation is the means of transporting the waste materials to the elimination system and the rate of speed of this transportation is a fair gauge of the efficiency of your circulation.

All this should make it easily understood why your circulation influences the way you look and feel. It's worth your while to check up on two or three circulation influences. For one thing, you may be impeding the free flow of circulation by wearing very tight garments. Those of you who stand on your feet all day should be particularly careful to avoid very tight girdles which cut off the circulation. You will be less tired at the end of the day for wearing looser garments. Tight garters, a too-tight waistband and extremely tight brassieres all have a detrimental effect on the circulation system.

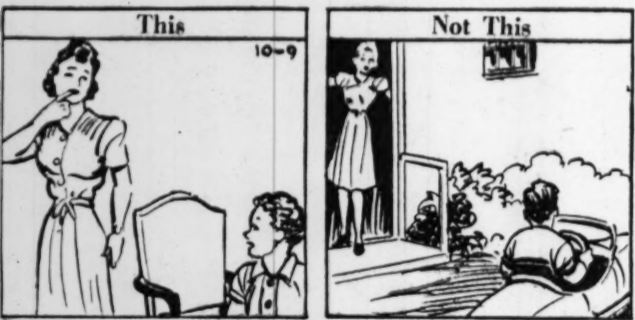

Of the various ways of giving your circulation a jog, massage is the pleasantest—and walking, the cheapest. When you are not feeling up to par and are too weary to make much effort, that's when you should have massage. But as an ordinary rule, walking is an excellent stimulant. You need at least an hour a day in the fresh air and there is no better way to get it than by walking. You'll see how well you look when you come in from an hour's brisk walk—your cheeks will be aglow and you will look and feel younger.

There are a number of specific stimulants. The person who stands a great deal of the time should not avoid binding garments but should also have foot massage and hot and cold foot baths in which the feet are scrubbed with a stiff brush to relieve congestion. This treatment may well be followed by propping the feet higher than the head for a rest period.

To counteract the constant pull of gravity it is a good plan to take some of your calisthenics in a downhill position. A good exercise is to lie on the side on the floor, lower arm propping the head, both legs straight down, and slowly raise and lower the top leg. Another excellent jogger is the side-scissors in which you lie on one side, both legs straight down, and swing both legs from the hips simultaneously in opposite directions.

Charts Simplify Piano Playing

Not a bad idea—to be attracting all with your swiny piano playing, from football hero to Johnny-Next-Door! Only, alas, you can't play!

You can teach yourself, quickly too, with a keyboard chart. It makes clear so much that may have discouraged you if you've tried to read music.

Which note for which key? Your chart pictures lifelike the most-used part of your piano keyboard and with each paper key is the note for it. Placing the chart behind your piano keys, you've only to look at your note and then play the real key right below it.

Or, if you've thought it would be a ghastly long time before you'd be playing tricky popular pieces, know this short-cut way to learn them—your faithful chart helping again!

In popular hits you'll see above the music staff little diagrams marked C and D7. These stand for simple chords which you can play along with the melody line of your piece, instead of the often complicated accompaniment.

A table of chords shows by number which keys to play for each chord—the numbers corresponding to the keys on your chart. So just pencil your key numbers on your music (often you'll only need to learn three or four chords to a piece) and you're all set.

Nothing to stop you from dazzling your crowd—playing sweet or playing swing! Our 24-page instruction book, "A Short Cut to Piano Playing," has the keyboard chart and table of chords for quickly learning popular music. Explains elements of music, has six well-known tunes for practice. Size, 8 1/2 x 11 inches.

Send 15 cents in coins for our instruction book, "A SHORT CUT TO PIANO PLAYING," to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Hats designed to do the utmost in flattery for Hollywood stars are now available for Atlanta women. They vary in style from down-over-an-eye effect to extreme pompadour types. The hats are exclusive models, just one of each being sold in this city. When you buy your hat you may have a photograph of the very same hat being worn by a Hollywood star. Above are shown three of the hats on three Warner Brothers stars. Upper left is Jane Wyman in a jaunty two-toned felt with two hatpins, the ends of which look like big buttons stuck in the crown. A veil adds a feminine effect. On the right, above, Georgia Carroll's clever pompadour is set off by a flatterer rolled-back brim. Edge of the brim is trimmed with a scalloped bit of felt. Below Miss Martha Scott models an off-the-face felt with new drapery of silk jersey completely covering back and throat. It makes a striking frame for a beautiful face. These hats range in price from $15 to $22.50. Call Winifred Ware at Walnut 6565 to find where in Atlanta these hats and others designed for Hollywood stars may be found.

Vitamin A May Be Valuable In Reducing Blood Pressure

By Dr. William Brady.

Let me quote from another "Little Lesson," "The 7 Keys to Vite"—

... it will do no harm to remember, as a bit of scientific information, that arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries) is a nutritional change, derangement or degeneration and it begins in the intima, the lining of the artery which is constantly bathed by the blood stream... what effect an occasional dash of alcohol in the blood has upon the delicate endothelial cells which line the artery. That kind of introspection, I think, is good for any one.

In the bulletin of the National Academy of Medicine (Buenos Aires, April, '40) Castex and associates expressed the opinion, formed from their studies of vitamin A deficiency in blood vessel affections, that insufficient intake of vitamin A is probably a factor in such disease processes.

In the May, 1941, issue of Therapeutic Diets, Havana, Drs. Govea-Pena and Villaverde report their experience in the treatment of essential hypertension (high blood pressure without discoverable organic change to account for it) with from 100,000 to 180,000 international units of natural vitamin A daily. They first noticed the favorable effect of large daily rations of natural vitamin A in the case of a young patient who was receiving high dosage vitamin A treatment for kidney stone together with high blood pressure. Later they administered the vitamin A to 65 patients with high blood pressure, and in only four cases did the blood pressure fail to reduce consistently... not necessary to normal and not necessarily permanent, but still it would seem that vitamin A is sufficient HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 6.—(INS) Richard Barthelmess, so long one of the screen's leading actors, is returning to the movies. I talked with Dick at the Douglas Fairbanks Jr. the other eve and he is very enthusiastic over "The Mayor of 44th Street," even though it is entirely different from anything he has ever played. He is a heavy. We all thought Dick would make many more pictures after his success in "Only Angels Have Wings." Remember Rita Hayworth in that movie? It was her first recognition. But Dick, who had a bad siege with his eyes, retired for a time.

In "The Mayor of 44th Street" Dick will be in good company for George Murphy is the hero and Anne Shirley the girl in the triangle. Al Green makes his first appearance on the RKO lot as their director. The story is about a gang of youngsters who used to be orchestra leaders in the theaters unless they were paid to applaud.

I have been invited to take a look at Ann Ayres both on and off the screen at M-G-M. Ann, they feel, is the hottest discovery in months. She is a Beverly Hills high school girl, and has appeared in concerts. A talent scout saw her and was so impressed that he gave her a test. She was put under contract—just a regular run-of-the-mill stock contract, but when her test was run it was so good that she was given Laraine Day's role of Dr. Kildare's sweetheart in the "Kildare" series. What will be done about the similarity of names—Lew Ayres and Ann Ayres, will be decided later. Ann sings with the charm of a Kathryn Grayson, they say, and is as pretty as a picture.

The old classic, "Robinson Crusoe," will be made into a movie once again. I have almost lost track of the times Robinson's adventures, his good man Friday, and all the days he spent on the lonesome island, have been on the screen. Warner will star Dennis Morgan, who, I suspect, is to be groomed for top roles. Hope Manning, New York actress, is being tested and will probably get the lead opposite Dennis. She, too, has a glorious voice. Interesting enough, "The Song" will give Dennis his first singing role since joining Warners.

One of the best ideas for entertaining the soldier boys on leave from the camps has been started by Jeanette MacDonald and Gene Raymond and carried on by Mildred and Harold Lloyd. Constance and Jeanette and Gene, their first host and hostess, give them a barbecue at 3:30. It is wonderful for the lads, who, otherwise, would have no place to spend their leave and would wander around the town looking for amusement. They meet nice girls, go swimming, play ping-pong and have a good time, which they certainly deserve.

Women Control MY DAY: Argentinian Hospitals

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.—At luncheon yesterday Miss Mary Winslow brought two very delightful guests, Senorita Graciela Mandujano, of Chile, and Senora Ana Rosa de Martinez-Guerrero, from the Argentine. Senorita Mandujano, whom I have had the pleasure of meeting before, has traveled in many parts of the United States since her arrival here last spring, so she must now feel quite at home in our country. She has just spent some time in Mexico and announced to me that she had become a Republican.

Senora de Martinez-Guerrero brought me an interesting scroll signed by many of the women of Buenos Aires who have joined together to aid the women in other countries who are fighting Nazism. They call their organization "Junta De Vidas Victorias." Senora de Martinez-Guerrero, who is a very charming young woman, has lately been interested in building a hospital. I have long known that the control and the management of the hospitals in the Argentine are in the hands of the women. I have often wondered if the contact with problems in the hospital would not some day create a situation where women would wish to prevent certain things, instead of waiting to alleviate them when they reach the hospital stage. Much to my interest, Senora de Martinez-Guerrero said yesterday that she had decided that the only way to do this was through a more active interest on the part of women along these lines. This is interesting, not only from the point of view of what it might mean internally, but of what it would mean in better understanding and co-operation between the women of the Americas.

Senora Caraway, from Arkansas, with two gentlemen from her state, also came to lunch. They were very cordial in their invitation to me to come to their college for commencement next May, so my answer was somewhat vague, but I did appreciate the effort the gentlemen made and particularly Mrs. Caraway's kindness in coming with them.

Yesterday afternoon I saw Mrs. George V. Ferguson, a most interesting woman, who has headed a voluntary participation bureau in Winnipeg, Canada. They have carried on there a most very interesting projects, but I doubt if we in our country can do exactly the same kind of thing. Their experience, however, should be very helpful to us. She also invited me to come to the meeting of the Junior League in Kansas City next spring, so my calendar would be filling up, you see, if I had the temerity to plan so far ahead. I have decided, however, that life is too uncertain to make definite engagements, beyond those I have already made, to give three lectures on the west coast and to visit my children some time in the month of April.

Hasty Marriage Beats Postponement

Dear Dixie:

I am worried to death. I am planning to marry and the boy is a draftee. He has gotten a deferment for about three months because he works for the government. He has a chance to go to the South Seas, and if he goes he will not have to go into the Army. The trouble is that he must leave before the date we set for our marriage. He wants me to join him there later, as it is impossible for me to go now. He says he would like for me to marry him now, but if I wish, I may wait until I join him in the South Seas. Should I marry him now, or wait until I join him? It will be impossible for him to return for about a year, or more. What should I do? WORRIED.

Marry your young man now, and join him in the South Seas as soon as you can.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PARTY GAMES

Dear Dixie: I am giving a party Friday night. Will you please tell me some games that boys and girls, ages 14 and 15, could play? We will be in couples. I do not have room for them to dance, and I plan to have the party outdoors.

B. S. W. "The Human Automats" is fun and is a blindfolded game in which two of the guests (a boy and girl) permit the hostess to tie a handkerchief or a scarf across their eyes. Lead the couple to the middle of the room, give each three soda crackers and tell them to feed each other.

The "Sweet Game" is another which may be enjoyed. Give each guest a pencil and paper and instruct each to make a sentence of five words, using words beginning with the letters S-W-E-E-T. For example, "Swing with ease each Tuesday." The guest having the best sentence in the opinion of the judges wins the prize.

As you are having the party outside, a contest naming the con-tinuations would be something different. "Dead Shot" is a game which can be played, too. This involves little equipment but no outside expense. Borrow 10 clothes pins from the laundry and from the kitchen obtain an empty milk bottle. Each guest, in turn, takes part in the game by attempting to drop the clothes pins, one at a time, into the bottle, which is standing on the floor—or the ground. Of course the one who succeeds in dropping the greatest number of clothes pins into the bottle should win the prize.

NEXT MOVE SHOULD BE BOY'S

Dear Dixie: In a few days it will be my boy friend's birthday. Due to the fact that I have not heard from him in three months, I am not sure of what would be the best thing for me to do. He came to see me three months ago, since then I have not heard from him. I wrote the last letter, which was before he came to see me. The day he came to see me another boy dropped in to see me, too. I do not know whether he understood that the caller was merely a friend. Many of my friends have advised me to write and explain to him. I am not willing for this affair to die. He has told me of his love for me many times and I believe in him, and trust, and love him, more than he shall ever know.

By DIXIE GEORGE.

WILSON'S Weekly RECIPES

This winter I plan to bring you week after week in this column the recipes, menus, and food suggestions which will enable you to give your family nutritious and appetizing meals for less money. And since meat is the backbone of the meal, I can help you most by telling you how to advantageously buy, cook, and serve meat.

Food Consultant
Wilson & Co.

THE ROAD TO THRIFT

Everybody, your family among them, enjoys meat for its flavor. Buy meat of rich flavor so that when you combine it with potatoes, rice, macaroni, or vegetables, it retains its fine meat flavor and imparts it generously. Also buy a large enough piece of meat to last for several meals; it costs less per pound and shrinks less.

FROM ONE MEAT MANY MEALS

An ideal thrift purchase is a whole Wilson's Certified Sliced Ham, the original Tender Extra-Mild ham in the bright orange wrapper.

Its flavor is so rich that it goes further. It bakes more quickly than the old style ham, so it shrinks less. For variety, use the center slices for broiling or pan frying, the butt-end for baking, the shank-end for cooking with vegetables.

Left-over dishes folks go for

Just a touch "velvet" for your meat budget are these delicious "left-overs." Each takes just 1 1/2 cups of cooked ham.

- Ham and macaroni
- Ham and vegetable salad
- Ham omelet
- Creamed ham on toast
- Ham-potato scallop

HEARTY AUTUMN DINNER

- Cream of onion soup
- Wilson's Certified Tasty Meat baked with candied sweet potatoes
- Canned corn and peas
- Fruit salad
- Spiced cupcakes
- Sweet Cider

BAKED TASTY MEAT

Wilson's Certified Tasty Meat is sugar-cured pork shoulder... (no bone—no waste). To bake it, remove cellophane and allow meat to reach room temperature. Place in open pan and bake in slow oven (325° F.) 40 minutes per pound. Cover with honey or brown sugar and brown for 15 minutes in a 400° F. oven.

Elmer Riddle To Be Honored By Town Folks

Celebration, Speeches, Banquet Scheduled Today at Columbus.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 8.—(AP)—They'll turn over the town to Elmer Riddle tomorrow—the local boy who set the National League ball parks ablaze last summer with his fireball pitching.

Under sponsorship of the Columbus Junior Chamber of Commerce, the city will observe "Elmer Riddle Day," complete with a banquet, speeches and a general celebration.

Highlight of the day will be the Jaycees' dinner for Riddle at 7:30 p. m. in the civic room of the Ralston hotel, where Riddle will receive the award of the Georgia Sports Writers' Association as the state's outstanding major leaguer for 1941.

Attorney General Ellis Arnall will be principal speaker.

Besides the plaque awarded by the Sports Writers' Association, Riddle is to receive a gift valued at approximately $100, contributed by business firms of the city.

The sports writers recently voted the sensational right-hander of the Cincinnati Reds as Georgia's No. 1 baseball star. Pitching his first year in the big leagues, Riddle won 19 games and lost four. He worked 217 innings in 33 games, allowing 180 hits, issuing 60 bases on balls and credited with 78 strikeouts. His performance brought him the unofficial pitching championship of the league for last season.

Fulton Gordon, of the Columbus Ledger-Enquirer, president of the Sports Writers' Association; Jimmy Robinson, of the Albany Herald, secretary-treasurer, and Tom Rogers, also of Albany, arranged to attend the celebration in behalf of the association.

Faux Pas In the current issue of Life magazine there's a story about the 1941 football forecast of Dick Dunkel, one of those rating system people.

And one passage is of particular interest in this section. Life reports:

"A new headache for football forecasters this fall is United States selective service. Just before Dunkel's 1941 rankings went to press the whole right side of the University of Georgia's powerful line was inducted into the Army, causing Georgia to drop from seventh to 18th in Dunkel's carefully weighed ratings of 625 teams."

Georgia, as a matter of fact, hasn't lost a single lineman to Uncle Sam. The Bulldogs have had a lot of trouble otherwise, such as Frankie Sinkwich's misfortune and the ineligibility of Gus Letcham, but the idea of losing the whole side of a line is entirely new. It belongs strictly to Dunkel, and goodness knows what he can do with it now he already has sold it to Life.

Just about everything adverse has happened to Georgia so far. The Carolina game was in the bag when Sinkwich got a knee on his jaw. And he was in the game at this point, according to our Johnny Bradberry, simply because Heyward Allen had been knocked slightly wacky and Jim Todd physically was in need of rest.

Magazine Editor Lamar Ball, a witness to the South Carolina-Georgia game, said yesterday: "Harry Mehre ought to send Rex Enright a check for $500."

Rugged Year This already has begun as a rugged year for forecasters. Dunkel's ratings hold up very well for the first four teams among what he calls the 30 strongest. After Minnesota, Texas, Stanford and Fordham, however, the going gets tough. He rated Alabama fifth, Ole Miss ninth, California 10th, Boston College 14th and Iowa 15th. Tennessee was 18th, and of all things, Tulane and Duke were rated 20th and 21st.

This corner, in writing a forecast for Street and Smith's annual Year Book, was fortunate in one respect. Duke was selected as probably the outstanding team in the south and was picked to defeat Tennessee.

Duke, make no mistake about it, is a team that shouldn't be beat.

It was interesting to read in New York about the new regard in which the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans is held over the Rose Bowl at Pasadena.

The football writers and columnists say that the

Sinkwich Passes Well, Broken Jaw Improves

Butts To Decide at Last Minute If Frankie Starts; Keltner To Replace Ellenson.

By F. M. WILLIAMS.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 8.—Frankie Sinkwich's broken jaw had improved enough today to sway in the balance Coach Wallace Butts' final decision over a starting tailback for the Georgia Bulldogs' clash with Ole Miss Friday night at 8:15 o'clock.

The Bulldog chieftain is certain about the men who will open the game at every other position, but he said he would not decide between Sinkwich and Captain Heyward Allen for the other all-important tailback spot until the last minute. It all depends on whether Frankie's recovery continues to be as rapid as it has been so far.

SINKY WORKS OUT. Sinkwich worked out again with the team, and although he obviously is bothered by the special headgear that has been rigged up to protect his injured jaw, he clicked like his old self several times during a passing drill.

Soreness is just about gone and when it has left entirely he'll be able to manipulate much better. While deliberating over whether to start Sinkwich or Allen, Coach Butts announced definitely he would open with one new face in the lineup.

That is Green Keltner, husky junior right tackle, converted from an end and held out last year, who will replace Gene Ellenson. Coach Butts pondered over the advisability of starting Keltner last week against South Carolina, but decided to stick with Ellenson one more game.

PLAYED WELL. Keltner went in as a substitute for Gene and played the outstanding defensive game in the line for Georgia. He was largely responsible for stopping the Carolina running attack after the Gamecocks scored their touchdown in the opening period.

Running with Keltner at left tackle will be the dependable Tommy Green, a senior letterman. At ends will be George Poschner and Van Davis, with Walter Ruark and Winfred Goodman as the first pair of guards. Big Clyde Earhardt will be at center. Alternate Captain Cliff Kimsey, blocking back; Lamar Davis, wingback, and Ken Keuper at fullback.

The Bulldogs went through a very light workout this afternoon, the entire squad being dressed in gym clothes. Tomorrow's last drill will be only a brief warm-up affair.

Injured Men Hold. Key Says Mehre. OXFORD, Miss., Oct. 8.—(AP)—The University of Mississippi's game with Georgia Friday night "is a tough assignment," Coach Harry Mehre said today, "but if the injured men come around, we'll play good football."

Oscar Britt, guard; Pep Bennett, first-string quarterback, and Jerry Jones, substitute quarter, all were out with injuries and may be unable to play Friday night.

The Rebels will leave by train tomorrow morning for Atlanta, by way of Birmingham and will work out at Ponce de Leon stadium Thursday night.

Cadets To Hold Giant Program At College Park

Fulton Meets Richardson Tonight on Russell High Gridiron.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

The Atlanta prep footballers offer a double-barreled feature tonight with fireworks expected in one game and everything except fireworks in the other.

The fireworks are expected to flare in the Marist-Commercial High neighborhood tiff at Ponce de Leon Park, and everything except a Roman candle siege is on the bargain bill at College Park, where the G. M. A.-Alexander City (Ala.) High clash will be but a small part of the big homecoming show the Cadets are planning.

The G. M. A. show is going to be a lulu with Wild Bill Curry putting on his famous stunt of supporting two men and a piano (as pictured in The Constitution recently) as the feature half-time attraction. Curry also will allow someone to jump off a 10-foot ladder onto his stomach as he lies on his back, and will go on exhibit with his human merry-go-round act which consists of supporting one man on his shoulders and emulating a whirling dervish with two more men hanging on the ends of a heavy weight-lifting set which he holds behind his shoulders.

FEATS BY DORTCH.

Charlie Dortch, 132-pound southern weight-lifting champ, also will be on hand to demonstrate some remarkable feats of strength. The Cuban Maracas Orchestra, the Louisiana Accordionists and the G. M. A. band will furnish music throughout the evening. It is a gala show that Bud Harris and his cohorts have planned, and Bud doesn't know where he can pack all the folks who have already announced their intention of showing up.

Joshin' Joe Engel, the old Chattanooga elephant hunter; Mayor LeCraw, Governor Talmadge and the football squads of Tech, Georgia and Oglethorpe have been invited to be guests of the school. Engel, however, will not be able to attend, though he wrote Harris, "If it were not for urgent business in Washington I would be at your big show with bells on." Too bad. Joe might have learned something about showmanship. The football game gets under way at 8 o'clock and the half-time extravaganza at 8:45.

DICKERSON OUT.

Louis Leskosky and Butch McCullough must face the Typists in their 8 o'clock clash sans the services of standout Guard J. R. Dickerson, who quit Marist for a lucrative job which popped up. However, Jack Fitzgerald, Bennie Dickerson, the Berry boys and Jack Mays, recently shifted from tackle to end, will be on hand to make the Cadets favored over a fast improving Typist eleven.

Early arrivals can see Ole Miss work out beginning around 6:30 before the game. They are en route to Athens to play Georgia. Coaches Godwin and Waggon are cheering the return of Bill Sprayberry, regular tackle of last season, who is also the Typists' best punter. He considerably enhances the Berry boys' chances against Marist, which lost to Boys' High and has played two 0-to-0 ties so far.

Coach C. C. Willis' Fulton Red Birds will engage Richardson High

The Spotlight

By GRANTLAND RICE.

SINGING FOR THE UNSUNG

It seems about time to leave the beaten path of high-powered publicity and speak a few words in behalf of Allyn McKee and his young men at Mississippi State.

How many recall the fact that Mississippi State, located at a sun-baked citadel known as State College, hasn't lost a football game in her last 17 starts? And among her victims you find Alabama twice, Georgetown's crack team from last fall (in Orange Bowl), L. S. U., Mississippi and several others who can play football.

After her fine 1940 team Mississippi State lost most of her veterans, including Buddy Elrod, a fine end, two fine backs and three outstanding linemen. So Mississippi State wasn't supposed to churn up much dust or mud this fall.

Alabama was. In fact, many picked Alabama at the top in Dixie, or at least on a par with Duke and Tulane.

Yet Alabama was not only beaten, 14 to 0, but badly outplayed by Coach McKee's team that now has an excellent chance of going through another unbeaten year and finding again the solace of another bowl party on New Year's Day. Mississippi and Duquesne are two of State's more formidable opponents, although Auburn and L. S. U. might rally and come back with more stuff than either has shown so far.

Still Intact

Most of the stronger teams, picked to go a long way upward, are still unbeaten. This list includes Minnesota, Notre Dame, Michigan and Ohio State in the Midwest—Fordham, Navy, Colgate, Penn and Cornell in the east—Duke, Georgia and Tulane in the south—Texas in the southwest—Nebraska and Oklahoma in the Big Six—and Stanford and Santa Clara on the west coast.

Duke, Tulane and Texas seem to be unusually strong. So does Georgia with a whole of a backfield, including speed, power and passing, not overlooking a fellow named Frank Sinkwich.

In the meanwhile, Washington State moves up on even terms with Stanford on the west coast. The Cougars' victory over California's Golden Bears was a surprise, at least to many who believed this might be California's Rose Bowl year. The northern sector of the Pacific Coast Conference is stronger than usual this fall with four high-class teams well above the general average—Washington State, Washington, Oregon and Oregon State.

Different at Yale

We attempted to supply the gentle hint that affairs would be different at Yale this fall, and this is undoubtedly the case. Don't let anyone tell you that spotting Virginia 19 points and then coming from behind to win was a light achievement. Virginia's unusually strong this season, and it was remarkable that a young team with a new coach could rally at half time as Yale did and get going with so much stuff.

Yale may not have enough power to handle Pennsylvania next Saturday, but at least the Red and Blue isn't going to win by merely walking on the field. Columbia's luck has been all on the Russell grid in East Point tonight in an N. G. I. C. go at 8 o'clock too, for those who like to see the little fellows scamper. The steadily improving Red Birds tied Robert E. Lee last week.

Smoky Joe Martin will not take his strong Decatur entry down to play Athens High, N. G. I. C. powerhouse, until Saturday night, because of the Georgia-Mississippi game in Athens Friday night.

Love Will Come Again

Gay Tries To Persuade Her Friend To Accept Curt De Witt's Proposal

By Alma Sioux Scarberry.

SYNOPSIS. April and Kent Hill come to a parting of the ways after six years of married life. They are very much in love but Kent, or Hill, as he is known to April and his friends, refuses to settle down and go to work. He spends most of his time playing golf and living on the reputation he earned as amateur golf champion for two years. Even after most of his money is gone, he thinks it is all right for April to bolster their dwindling income by giving voice lessons in the Hillier-Lorraine School of Music and Dancing, which has formed with her lifelong friend and companion, Gay Lorraine. En route home from Reno by plane, April meets Curt De Witt, wealthy steel magnate. He sympathizes with April and relieves her mind during the plane ride by telling her of his own unfortunate marriage. Under the terms of her divorce, April gets custody of her young daughter, when Curt and April step out of the plane at La Guardia field they meet Hill. He has been drinking and is angry at seeing April with Curt. After a brief exchange with April, he leaves in a huff. The next morning she reads of his engagement to a wealthy and notorious divorcee, Drusilla Bayne. During April's absence in Reno, Cherry, her 19-year-old sister, has left her home to break her engagement to Pat Hastings, a young lawyer, and come to live with April. Cherry is very much upset by April's divorce and has decided to make her own way in New York as a model. The next day April is at a Broadway opening. After considerable urging from Gay, she accepts the invitation and wears a stunning lipstick red evening gown. During the intermission she meets Hill with Drusilla. When April returns home she has a long talk with Cherry and is troubled with her plans for the future. The next morning, Pat Hastings arrives to see Cherry. But April convinces him that it would be best to leave Cherry have her fling in New York for the present, at least. Gay and April reopen their school with a new and enlarged staff of teachers and a devious expense. They are worried about the future of the school when Gay informs April that she has arranged for a studio addition for her. The addition is successful.

INSTALLMENT XI.

"Not much," Gay's green eyes snapped. "I'd like to see myself with your chance, turning down a man like Curt De Witt. He not only has money, but he's kind and considerate and handsome. Why he's got everything a woman could possibly look for in a husband!" "You wouldn't say that," April smiled tolerantly at her disturbed friend, "if you'd ever been married for love." "Bah!" Gay exploded. "A lot of good it did you, that puppy love stuff! It just got you two children to look after. A childish husband and a son!" "When April's face clouded Gay added hurriedly: "Oh, honey, I don't mean to criticize Hill or hurt your feelings. I know he could charm a bird off a tree. And he's got some wonderful qualities. But I just get furious when I think how you have struggled and worried, and that there is a millionaire at your feet and you let your love for Hill stand in the way. That's all over. You're living in the past."

When April looked at the floor thoughtfully saying nothing, Gay went on urgently: "You're so silly to be prejudiced against marriage, just because your first one didn't turn out right. It's so darned old-fashioned to make a martyr out of yourself. You're young and beautiful and you can't stop living and loving just because your first marriage didn't jell. I could shake you for being such a nitwit. I wouldn't urge you to marry Curt if he weren't such a fine person. But he is. He's a saint! He'd carry you around on a pillow the rest of your life. And he'd be a wonderful father to Kenny." April smiled uncertainly: "You're doing a very good job of selling him to me. You almost make me believe I should take a chance on seeing how it would work out."

Gay said excitedly: "Are you really weakening? You are very fond of him?" "Of course I am," April admitted. "I adore him. He's one of the nicest people I've ever known." "Then I can't see there's anything stopping you," Gay sat back on the divan, relieved. "Tell me," she asked then "has he ever kissed you?" April looked surprised that Gay had asked her such a personal question. "I know it's none of my business," Gay shrugged, "but I just wanted to know if you'd made any effort to find out if he appealed to you. You're such an old maid!" April flushed slightly. "He kissed me tonight for the first time." "Did you like it?" Gay raised her auburn eyebrows inquisitively. "Curt isn't so hard to take is he?" April laughed uncertainly: "I'm sure I could tolerate his kisses, if you must know the truth. But that doesn't mean I'll marry him. I'd want to fall in love again, silly as it may sound to you. And I don't believe I ever could."

"I give up!" Gay threw up her hands. "You certainly don't belong in this century, Priscilla. Well, go ahead, get your security the hard way. If you'd rather be a singer on the radio than the wife of a millionaire, it's your life. I've no doubt you'll be a big success on the air. I imagine Curt would be very happy to have you continue with your career, if that's what's standing in your way." "No my darling," April smiled.

getting up. "That's a little matter that could be taken care of very nicely. I just want to fall in love again, before I marry." "Sap!" Gay called to her as she disappeared through the door to her room. "But I do love you for it," she said under her breath, getting up to go to her own bed. At least Gay felt she had done everything she could to keep her promise to Curt De Witt. Now the rest was in the lap of the gods, and there was always hope that a woman would change her mind any minute.

When April arrived home from her broadcast the next evening, Pat Hastings was sitting in the living room. She kissed him and told him how glad she was to see him. "You don't know how hard it has been for me to keep my promise to you so long," Pat said miserably. "I just about died to see Cherry. How is she, and what is she doing? Isn't she tired of all the rumpus yet?" April decided to be perfectly frank with him. His face seemed thinner and had a look of discouragement that moved her deeply. But she could see no use in giving him any hope.

April said: "You must be hungry. Pat. I am. Come in the kitchen and we'll make sandwiches and coffee and talk."

Baering Down on the News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer.

Well, I just sat through the greatest World Series since Cain dusted off Abel.

It will keep the Stove League hotter than wet mustard.

Those two teams fought it out to the finish and an encore.

But the thing that stops any argument is a double or a triple up against the fence. You can't win the game when your fourth outfielder is the rightfield wall.

Those Yanks are tougher than mule hide in a tannery. But they must admit the Dodgers had a straw in their soda water.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—Energy and ambition will be high previous to 5:30 p. m., making this a propitious time for having dealings with manager, judges and intellectual people. After 5:30 p. m. will be better to retire and conserve your efforts for your decisions may be somewhat clouded or marked with indecision.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—An excellent day for financial interests, property interests, legal affairs, banking and investment interests are especially favored. New beginnings should develop with swift strides.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—The morning hours and until 3:41 p. m. favor developments that require much activity. Benefits may be derived through correspondence, travel and general business.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—Between 10 a. m. and 12:00 p. m. general business and personal interests are favored, contacts with those in high positions, social welfare is favored. After 12:00 p. m. there will be a need for discretion in regard to promises, agreements, communication and travel.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—Favorable to 4:00 p. m. favors asking favors and for promises. After 4:00 p. m. favors consultations seeking advice from brokers, bankers, educational people and sports.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—Previous to 6:30 p. m. favors social affairs, artistic matters, dealings with unusual people. After 6:30 p. m. favors matters of romantic interests.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—Be careful that you do not miscalculate or misjudge or overdo in financial transactions previous to 1:42 p. m., but if you will give your attention to affairs of a light vein or which involve your domestic and social happiness, this can be a very agreeable period. Between 1:42 p. m. and 6:30 p. m. harsh words, undesirable conditions or sordid happenings may creep in to give you a feeling of repulsion.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO)—The entire day and until 7:43 p. m. favors things of conservative and commonplace nature.

After 7:43 p. m. use care in travel and around strangers.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—The period does not appear to be a favorable time for indulging in financial extravagances. An excellent day to stick to routine matters. The best aspects of the day operate between 1:10 p. m. and 4:20 p. m.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—The entire day favors new and important undertakings. You may have opportunity to accomplish something toward your highest ideals and until 12:42 p. m. God will co-operate and should be more easily obtained.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—The day favors more attention to necessary affairs and ideas that have been hanging fire for some time. The day favors using diplomacy around older people. The evening favors domestic affairs.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—The influences prevailing today do not favor entering into anything that is indefinite, or that is not thoroughly understood, for too much action or too quick action on your part may easily bring losses. A good day to be cautious.

Today's Radio Thursday's Programs

These Programs Are Given in EASTERN STANDARD (ATLANTA) TIME and are subject to change by the stations or networks without notice.

March of Time Returns at 8 Over WAGA

Joan Davis and Mischa Auer Are Vallee's Guests Tonight.

Rated as the top dramatic program on the air for many years, the March of Time returns tonight with the first in a new series of programs featuring dramatic interpretation of the news.

Following the pattern of the film features, editors of Time will delve deeply into events leading up to the important news events of the day. On previous broadcasts more attention was paid to the flash headlines.

The program will be heard over NBC-Blue and WAGA at 8 o'clock.

Joan Davis and Mischa Auer of the films—the one a slapstick comedienne, the other a Russian dialectician—return for a second joint appearance with John Barrymore on the Rudy Vallee-John Barrymore show tonight at 10 o'clock over WSB.

Miss Davis and Auer will bounce through a comedy sketch titled "Rudy's Barber Shop," in which Rudy turns up as proprietor of the hair-cutting emporium, Barrymore as an irascible customer, Auer as chief shear man, and Miss Davis as a quip-happy manicurist. To supply the close harmony associated with a barber shop, the King's Men quartet will be heard.

Cunell Bowes, sub-pahdon, Major Bowes—salutes the state of the Cunell—at Louisville, Ky. Louisville, on the Ohio river, manufactures cigars, whisky, bathtubs, railway supplies, paint, textiles, cement, steel tanks, automobiles and auto bodies. The University of Kentucky is there.

What "Duffy's Tavern" needs is a little uplift in its intelligence quotient, says Archie (Ed Gardner), and that is why Screen Star Gloria Swanson has been invited to the Columbia network broadcast tonight at 8:30 over WGST.

"Miss Swanson," says Archie, "is known as one of the 10 best-dressed women in the world... and what the saloon goes around Duffy's place is to get a little anything else is to get a little rest and de trop."

Miss Duffy doesn't relish Miss Swanson's guest appearance, but promises to act like a lady unless somebody makes a pass. John Kirby furnishes the music. Eddie Green, John Reed King and the rest of the crowd promise to get haircuts for the occasion.

The lower East Side twang of "Andre," Frank Morgan's continental butler, may be recognized as the voice of "Schlepperman," once a celebrated Jack Benny stooge, when Frank Morgan joins Jimmy (Baby Snooks) Brice, Meredith Willson and Frank Morgan again on NBC's Coffee Time broadcast tonight at 8 o'clock over WSB.

Hearn is a master of every dialect from Hungarian gypsy to Brooklyn gypsy, but his favorite accent is the "to you I sell doughnuts for twenty-five dollars" variety. He introduced this patois on the air playing the role of "Schlepperman" opposite Jack Benny, and his oily syllables produce hilarious results coming from the mouth of Frank Morgan's flunky, "Andre," from whom one would expect a cultured European accent.

VoxPopDrapes Hangar Studio With 'Chutes

Equipment Is 'On Air' Instead of in Air for Program.

Vox Pop has discovered a new use for parachutes in the interviews Parks Johnson and Wally Butterworth will broadcast with American and British student fliers at Maxwell Field, Montgomery Ala., at 8 p. m. Monday, October 13, over the coast-to-coast network of the Columbia Broadcasting System and WGST.

The parachutes will be "on the air" instead of in it. Scores of 'chutes will be draped to deaden the sound in the huge hangar where the first network program from Maxwell Field will be held with an audience of 3,300, including Army aviation trainees, RAF student pilots and the ground crew.

Parks Johnson will be returning
